JURY LOANED EARS TO RAVINGS OF MOB, SAYS RUBE ARNOLD

Leo M. Frank Convicted, He Declares, by Prejudice and Not by the Evidence Given in Case.

HIS TRIAL IS COMPARED TO RITUAL MURDER CASE

Scratch Beneath the Surface and You Will Find Parallel With the Russian Trial. Arnold Tells Judge Roan.

Reuben Arnold, associate counsel for the defense, declared in his argument Friday for a new trial, that the trial of Leo Frank would teach the entire universe a lesson against prejudice, and that civilization was "horrified at the miserable example of his client's conviction."

His speech began at 4:13 o'clock. It was a vitriolic denunciation of the alleged reign of prejudice during Frank's arraignment, and of the fear the crowds inspired in the twelve men who meted the verdict of guilty to the prisoner. He compared the situation to the dark ages, when Jews were stoned to death because of their religion.

Prejudice was the theme of his argument. That and the dependence the jury and public put in the story of Jim Conley, the negro. The jury, he stated, did not listen to the evidence and weigh it as they should, but solely loaned their ears to the mad and ignorant ravings of the mob which "cried as wolves for the blood of the man on trial."

Taken Down in Shorthand.

His speech was delivered with all the fire and eloquence at the noted attorney's command. By special request of both the prosecution and defense, it was taken down by a stenographer, and will therefore go down into court history.

"A terrible responsibility is on the trial judge in this case, your honor," said Mr. Arnold. "The supreme court is the cause of this. It expects you to decide logically—to determine on the facts in the case whether or not a new trial should be granted. It is entirely up to you. In all supreme court cases, it is invariably said: 'These verdicts were either approved or renounced by the trial judge. We should act accordingly.'

"You must remember that the matter cannot be referred back to the jury. Those twelve men have been disbanded. They are of the past and cannot be brought back. I feel I am required by your honor's scope of power to argue these facts. We submit that the supreme court will not allow me to make argument—neither will anything else. Now is my only time. The supreme court, you know, is purely technical—that and nothing else.

"The Frank trial grew out of Georgia's most exceptional murder case. The killing of Mary Phagan was the most exceptional, the most diabolical. You will recollect that the most of our present-day murders are the slaying of women and children. This is a phenomenon with nothing for which to account. Twenty women, according to record, have been slain in Atlanta within the past two years.

Parallel With Russian Trial.

"In the trial of Frank—if you scratch beneath the surface, which we surely must do—you will find that the hue and cry is on an exact parallel with the Kiev trial in Russia—a Russian trial of a Jew for the murder of a thirteen-year-old girl. The Kiev trial has convinced the world that it is the most diabolical instance of persecution in civilized history; and the record of racial prejudice.

"We have had to contend with two hydra-headed propositions in the case of Frank. They are prejudice and ignorance. Also, might be added the spirit of the mob, the worst of all.

"The courts are supposed to be the superior knowledge in every case. They are supposed to be superior to the public and all else. But this case has made me tremble for the majesty and power of the court and for the reign of law and peacefulness. It seems as though the law and power and justice is more on trial than Leo Frank.

"The ocean of feeling and prejudice that appeared at the trial threatened to wash justice away as though it were only a small and feeble building erected on the sands. I sincerely hope and pray I will never go through another suc experience.

The Day Is Coming.

"The day is now here when there should be no feeling against the Jew. It is coming with enlightenment and sincerity and knowledge. It is gaining ground with even such a thing as ignorance. In the south we have the best people—we have the representative aristocracy of our nation, and the southerner, brought down to a final analysis, is the only real American.

"But the ignorant southerner does not represent southern sentiment or feeling. And, it is only the ignorant who smile and shake hands with one another when a man is condemned to death, and a picture of a human being swung from the gibbet confronts a public. Listen! I have here something that bears as directly on the Frank case as any bit of evidence produced at the trial. It is a communication in The Constitution from a college professor of our own state. Let me read it:

Letter to Constitution.

(Mr. Arnold then read a letter published in Friday's Constitution from Professor Julius McGrath, of the faculty of Emory college, Oxford, Ga. It follows:)

"'Editor Constitution: In the holy city of Kiev, Russia, a Jew by the name of Mendel Bailiss is being tried on what is known as 'ritual murder,' which, in plain English, means that this man had killed a Christian child in order to mix its blood with the passover bread. In

IMPASSIONED PLEA FOR WILBURN'S LIFE IS MADE BY COOPER

Dramatic Scene in Gray Court Room When Attorney Drops Exhausted in His Chair in Midst of Argument.

MOVE FOR MISTRIAL IS DENIED BY COURT

Feeling of Uneasiness Pervaded Court Friday, Causing Judge to Issue Warning Against Demonstration.

By Vernon Stiles, Staff Correspondent.

Gray, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—"Don't hang this boy unless you hang the woman who dominated and led him into wrong," pleaded Attorney John R. Cooper in the final argument of the trial of Nick Wilburn, charged with the coldblooded murder of James A. King, whose widow is indicted as an accessory after the fact.

"There are not enough jurymen in the country to hang her and you know it," he continued.

"You haven't got the nerve to hang her," he shouted vehemently.

Judge J. A. Park interrupted with the statement that he did not believe that the attorney had the right to conjecture the outcome of the other cases. After argument, Judge Park stated he would allow Mr. Cooper a "broad field," and the attorney went one without further allusion, however, to what may happen to Mrs. King.

A few moments later, Mr. Cooper, who had been speaking for over two hours, dropped exhausted in his chair. He stated in a weak voice that he could not continue, and as it was after 5 o'clock the case was continued until Saturday morning. Wilburn was taken back to Macon for the night.

Mistrial Is Asked.

Earlier in the day the defense had moved for a mistrial, declaring that Jurors John A. and W. L. Middlebrooks, father and son, respectively, were related to Gus Middlebrooks, of Houston county, who married Miss Sallie King, sister of the dead man. After a number of witnesses had failed to state definite relationship, Solicitor Joseph E. Pottle had the motion overruled.

That the case will go to the United States supreme court, in the event of Wilburn's conviction, was the indication of attorneys for the defense today. It is stated that the young man's friends have secured necessary funds to fight for him to the last.

Feeling of Uneasiness.

There was a marked feeling of uneasiness in the courtroom as the day wore on. Shortly after the trial opened Friday morning, some twenty of James King's relatives and friends from near Round Oak came into the courtroom in a body. Not the slightest outward indication of violence was shown, but three deputies moved up until they stood directly behind the accused man and kept their positions all during the day.

At the afternoon session, Judge Park, who had quelled the slightest signs of disorder, announced that he heard some one make a remark that did not sound well, and that no remarks would be allowed. He complimented the people of Jones county on their conduct throughout the case, and asked that the same quietness continue to prevail.

That the fate of Wilburn will be decided Saturday and his sentence given him now appears certain.

Colonel Cooper, who was given unlimited time in his argument, is expected to conclude early in the morning.

Mr. Cooper was not allowed, after considerable argument, to show the interest of Detective C. B. Moore in the case. He stated, with the jury out, that he desired to do this in order to discredit the statement of Wilburn, which, he declared, was obtained through Moore's "third degree" methods.

Wilburn Arraigned by Pottle.

Solicitor Pottle, who closed the argument for the state, delivered a powerful address, calling on the jury to do its duty and to hang Wilburn. He painted the accused as a "traitor and a coward," and also depicted Mrs. King as being a woman black with the guilt of her husband's death.

Attorney Cooper's speech was called the "most wonderful effort of his life" by a lawyer who has long known him at the bar. In the time that he spoke, he flung satire at the efforts of the

Figuring in Wilburn Murder Trial

Goaded Beyond Endurance, Mrs. King Breaks Silence And Accuses Nick Wilburn

By Vernon Stiles, Staff Correspondent.

Gray, Ga., October 24.—Special.)—Aroused over the allegations that she had been guilty of immoral relations with Fred Stepp, aged 22 a sawmill hand, who boarded with the King family, Mrs. King, expecting to go on trial Monday as accessory before the fact to the murder of her husband, James A. King, made her first statement of the affair to The Constitution today.

With tears in her eyes and a voice that frequently broke, the woman admitted relations with Nick Wilburn, accused of murdering her husband, but denied that any other man had ever been her paramour. She also declared that Wilburn had forced his attentions upon her on the first occasion and, through threats of killing King and then himself, had compelled her to yield time and again.

She held up her right hand and swore that she had never consented or even suggested to Wilburn that he kill King. On the contrary, she said she had pleaded with Wilburn not to commit murder, and had warned her husband against Wilburn and begged that King take her and go to south Georgia to live.

Saved King's Life.

"I even saved Mr. King's life one time when Nick had given him strychnine in some whisky, but I feared to tell Mr. King why he was sick."

The statement was made by Mrs. King in her cell in the Jones county jail, where she has been kept since King met his death last December. It was given through consent of W. D. McNeil, of Macon, her attorney. Before the attorney came she had always turned her back upon all who questioned her.

"Nick, when I first knew him, a short time before the killing, was a despondent, melancholy boy," she began in a clear tone. "He came to our house once or twice and sat with Mr. King and I in the family sitting room. There he used to say that he had no one to care for him and that he believed he would kill himself some day.

"'Nick,' I said to him, 'Mr. King and I are your friends.' I put my arm across his shoulder. I felt toward the boy as any mother would to a lad in trouble. Mr. King was with us, and he repeated what I had said about being friends to Nick. Nick seemed to like us for our friendliness, and got to calling Mr. King 'Uncle Jim.'

Says Boy Overpowered Her.

"He used to come to the house about three times a week after that, and one day he happened to come when Mr. King was away. I went into my bedroom for something and Nick followed me. I did not notice his being there until he put his arms around me and, after a short struggle, overpowered me.

"I ordered him never to come to the house again, and he swore that if I ever told he would kill me and himself. He had often talked of suicide, and I believed that he cared nothing for his own life.

"To save Mr. King I kept quiet. Nick never came back for two weeks, and then one day when I think he knew my husband was away he came there and forced me to yield again.

"This happened then time and again, and I cried at night in my bed, but I was afraid to tell my husband. I begged Mr. King to take me away, and Nick found it out and he grew angry with me and swore that if I left he would kill King and kill himself."

Here the woman broke down, and apparently could go no further. Her black waist caught the tears that she seemed not to notice.

"After Dick gave Mr. King the strychnine and I had saved him," she finally went on, "I begged again to leave Jones county, but Mr. King could not sell his land and get away.

Even on Day of Killing.

"Then one afternoon Nick came to the house. I thought he had come for the same purpose as before, but when I told him Mr. King had gone hunting and would be back soon, he left. When Mr. King did not come back I gave the alarm. I could not believe when they found him dead that Nick had killed him. It looked like suicide or an accident, and everybody told me that it was.

"I never made any confession that I plotted Mr. King's death for the sake of his $2,000 insurance. I did come out and tell people of my relations with Nick. I could not keep that any longer. I just had to tell it.

"It was fright for Mr. King and fear of what would happen to me and my little children that kept me from telling Mr. King what Nick had done.

"I ain't fit to live. I ain't fit to look at by no respectable person," she cried.

The accused woman had been giving her statement in words that denoted that she had a good English education, but at the last outbreak she lapsed into the language of the uncultured.

She turned to talking of her children. The youngest are being cared for in the Hephzibah Orphan asylum and the oldest ones by relatives. One daughter is the wife of Frank Wilburn, brother of the man accused of killing her father. Mrs. King, when she finished talking, threw herself across the bed. Her story outlines the claim of the defense, according to Attorney McNeil, who states that he is convinced of its genuineness.

BLASTED AFFECTIONS ARE VALUED AT $35,000

New York, October 24.—A jury in the supreme court placed a value this afternoon of $35,000 upon the affections of Miss Mary McIntyre, a Brooklyn school teacher. A verdict awarding her this sum was returned in her $150,000 suit against William Hughes, a manufacturer of paper boxes, for alleged breach of promise to marry. Miss McIntyre is about 40 years old.

DEADLOCK ON QUESTION OF BISHOP FOR BLACKS

Episcopalian House of Bishops Favors Proposition Turned Down by Deputies.

New York, October 24.—A deadlock between the house of bishops and the house of deputies, the governing board of the Protestant Episcopal church, was brought about at the general convention today when the bishops voted to establish a separate bishopric for negroes of the south, the bishop of this district to have a seat in the upper house. The house of deputies a few days ago rejected this plan and asked the bishops to refer the matter to a joint commission which would report at the next triennial convention.

The two houses having reached divergent conclusions in what is regarded as one of the most important problems that has come before the present convention, one of the two bodies is ordered to withdraw its vote and concur in the action of the other. The bishops have asked the deputies to do this. The lower house will consider the question probably tomorrow.

The house of bishops voted that the Episcopal church shall sanction religious communities within diocese. This was suggested in a speech early in the convention by Bishop S. Spalding of Utah, and was introduced later in the form of a proposed canon. The bishops requested the house of deputies to concur.

Under the legislation voted by the bishops a religious community seeking recognition would have to submit to the church for approval the rules and constitution, no change in which could be made without the consent of the bishop of the diocese containing the mother church of the community. The community could elect a chaplain, who would be responsible to the Episcopal bishop for his ministration the same as a parochical clergyman. The real estate and endowments of the community would be held in trust for it by the Episcopal church.

The house of deputies later voted in favor of the canon sanctioning religious communities. At present there are four of these orders for men and eighteen for women existing by the tolerance of the Episcopal church, and it is understood they are prepared to take steps at once to come within Episcopal communion. In the lower house there was no opposition to the plan.

The house of deputies confirmed the bishops' appointment of Rev. Dr. William Cabell Brown, archdeacon of Brazil, as bishop of the missionary district of Cuba. Bishop Robert Strange, of the diocese of East Carolina, who became ill here since the convention began, announced he had placed the affairs of the district in the hands of a diocesan committee for an indefinite time.

The house of bishops tonight considered the proposed amendment to the church constitution providing that a two-thirds vote shall be the necessary majority on any proposal to change the denomination's name. The house took no action but probably will resume discussion tomorrow.

United States to Warn Other Nations to Keep Hands Off in Mexico

Washington Preparing to Notify Foreign Powers That Any Interference Will Be Regarded as Unfriendly to This Government.

NOTE WILL DEFINE ATTITUDE TOWARDS HUERTA GOVERNMENT

The Proposed Proclamation Caused by Dispatch of Foreign Battleships to Mexican Waters and Recent Act of British Minister.

Washington, October 24.—The United States government is preparing to notify the nations of the world generally that any interference in Mexican affairs will be regarded as unfriendly to this government.

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Counsellor John Bassett Moore, of the state department, have exchanged ideas on what the proclamation to the world should express. It will be communicated to foreign governments everywhere in line with the policy established earlier of keeping other nations informed of every step taken in its handling of the Mexican problem.

The proclamation, or note, also will serve, it is understood, as an explicit definition of the policy of the United States toward the de facto authorities in Mexico, reiterating the principle that recognition only can be given to governments on this hemisphere founded on law and order.

Earlier today it was expected that it would be only a matter of a few hours when the proclamation would be made public, but tonight it was practically decided to hold the matter in abeyance for several days, at least until after the elections in Mexico next Sunday.

Causes of Proposed Action.

Two things, it is known, have contributed to the determination of the government to define its policy—the presentation by Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister to Mexico, of his credentials immediately after Huerta had proclaimed himself dictator, and the dispatch of several war vessels to Mexican waters.

The British embassy here today, at the direction of the foreign office, officially advised Secretary Bryan that the British government pronounced as unauthentic the now famous interview credited to Sir Lionel, expressing the view that the United States did not understand conditions in Mexico.

Another incident tonight that was regarded with significance was the assurance that came from Ambassador Jusserand to the state department that the French government, in sending a warship to Mexican waters, did not intend in any way to embarrass the United States. Officials indicated satisfaction over the apparent trend of the French government's attitude.

There is a possibility that if the powers indicate further unwillingness to embarrass the United States that this government may withhold its pronouncement, but some officials were of the opinion that sooner or later such a declaration, which they regarded as tantamount to a reaffirmation of the principles of the Monroe doctrine, would be required.

Delicate Situation Existed.

Administration officials generally maintained a severe reticence in connection with Mexican affairs. They admitted that an acute and delicate situation existed early in the day when word was received that the American vessel, the Morro Castle, had been detained at Vera Cruz. It was not revealed what orders were in preparation, but there was a noticeable relief in official circles when cablegrams announced the release of the ship.

Tonight the disposition of the high

EDUCATION BOARD TO ASK $200,000 FOR NEW SCHOOLS

Money Will Be Used Exclusively to Relieve Congested Conditions Which Exist at the Present Time.

CONTINGENT FUND MAY BE USED FOR SCHOOLS

Mayor Believes This Engineering Money Is Available, But Captain Clayton Says It Can't Be Touched.

Atlanta's general council will be asked in 1914 to provide $200,000 for use of the school board.

The money will be used exclusively to relieve the congested conditions in some of the public schools. While members of the school board are not willing to commit themselves as to the specific amount needed to give comfort to thousands of little children, a majority believe that $250,000 is needed, but also take the position that $200,000 will furnish relief for at least five years.

Mayor James G. Woodward says that the schools are not so crowded as has been reported. However, he is in favor of providing relief in the shape of more schools—two at least—and believes that $100,000 will be more than sufficient.

Two modern schools can be erected for $100,000.

$100,000 for Schools.

Mayor Woodward threw light on the financial problem which stands as a menace to the school improvement movement Friday.

He explained that he was of the opinion that $100,000 now to the credit of the contingent fund for engineering expenses can be diverted to the school board.

The fund was created in the bond ordinance, which stipulates that 15 per cent of the bond money be put into a contingent fund. The bond money was voted for sewers and school improvement purposes. Captain R. M. Clayton stated Friday that the fund amounts to $100,000. He also stated that he did not believe the whole amount would be expended in 1914. About $25,000 of the fund will be necessary, he says, to complete the engineering details at the three sewage disposal plants, and it is possible that $25,000 more will be spent to build larger sewers to replace the smaller ones.

By the strictest economy it is possible to save $50,000 from this fund.

"I am not certain as to the law which governs the expenditure of the money," Mayor Woodward said Friday. "But it seems to me that if there is any money left in the fund it can be used for school purposes. I am going to have the law looked up."

Cannot Be Diverted, He Says.

Construction Chief Clayton says that the money to the credit of the contingent fund, of which the mayor has reference cannot be diverted for any other purposes. On the other hand, Captain Clayton says that contingencies may arise to make it necessary to spend the entire amount on sewers. He ponted out the McDaniel street sewer extension as a contingency which has been met through the fund.

President Walter Daley, chairman of the special committee appointed to make an investigation into the school situation, told a Constitution reporter Friday afternoon that the committee will immediately start its probe. He explained that the members of the committee are fully acquainted with the conditions existing at all the overcrowded schools, and said that it will not be a difficult matter to point out to the general council of Atlanta just what is needed to give relief to the children.

President Daley says that the school board should not be burdened with the responsibility for the present conditions.

"All the board can do is to ask for the money and if we don't get it it is because the city hasn't got it to give," he said.

Daley Wants $250,000.

"How much money, in your opinion, will be necessary to improve conditions?" Colonel Daley was asked.

He replied that he believed the amount necessary would be close on to $250,000.

He was asked if the board would ask the general council for that much money. He replied that the board would decide on that part of the proposition at a subsequent date.

That $250,000 will be demanded of the city for the schools is the decision of a majority of the members of the board. Other members who are not in sympathy with the movement for better schools, are just willing to ask council for a little more than the annual appropriation.

President J. O. Cochran, of the park board, said Friday that he finds a sentiment in favor of a tax increase of 25 cents over the present rate of $1.25 to be levied for one year only, and the money thus derived to be used for school improvements only.

"I have discussed the school problem with citizens and members of the city administration and find that there is quite a sentiment for a tax rate increase," President Cochran said. "I know that the people are taxed too heavily now for the returns they get, but I don't think that they will object to an increase of 25 cents, if they know that the money will be spent judiciously for school purposes. The levy could be made for one year only, and the increase it will make in the city's revenue will be sufficient to take care of the schools, and possibly a little can be thrown into the park department's jug."

Giving Careful Consideration.

The Constitution's stories calling attention to the needs of the schools has caused members of the city administration to give more careful and conscientious consideration of the subject than ever before, an dout of the officials of the government was to await the developments of the next forty-eight hours before making any move. President Wilson had some doubt about going to Mobile, Ala., to make an address on Monday before the Southern Commercial congress, but he told friends tonight that he probably would go. He leaves early tomorrow for Philadelphia to address the congress hall celebration, but should there be extraordinary developments he may not make a southern trip.

Secretary Bryan was in frequent conference with the president during the day. Mr. Bryan called attention to General Huerta's promise to the diplomatic corps that even if his friends voted for him next Sunday he would not except the presidency on the ground that it would be unconstitutional to succeed himself. Inasmuch as President Wilson, in a note, recently announced that the United States regarded the assumption of dictatorship by Huerta as a violation of the promises for a constitutional election, the result of this election is not calculated to have any considerable effect on the American policy.

The predicament of General Felix Diaz, one of the candidates for the presidency who remains isolated at Vera Cruz, apprehensive of danger if he tries to make a political campaign, excited the attention of officials here who are determined to give him asylum if necessary. The position of the administration with respect to all candidates is that they should not be molested in any way.

MEXIC COURT PLANS TO UPHOLD HUERTA

Mexico, October 24.—President Huerta is to be upheld for all the acts of his administration. His elevation to the presidency likewise is to be shown to have been entirely legal. This will be done through an opinion that is being prepared by the judges of the supreme court.

Several of the judge shave been engaged for days searching the records for precedents and applying them to the acts of the executive. This has engaged their attention to the total exclusion of all other affairs of the courts of their jurisdiction. It is expected that the opinion will be rendered by Judge Demetrio Sodi and probably concurred in by one or two other members of the supreme bench. The opinion, it is said, will deal chiefly with the subject of the dissolution of congress and doubtless will show that that act was fully justified by the alleged treasonable conduct of the deputies.

Supporters of General Felix Diaz look for his arrival in the capital tomorrow. President Huerta is said to have advised Diaz to come in view of the various stories that have grown out of his halt in Vera Cruz.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, says he considers as fiction the report circulated in the United States that the French minister had called a meeting of the members of the diplomatic corps to devise a plan for averting a crisis.

The minister of war denied today a report that the members of the Huerta staff had been arrested. Investigation in other quarters also proved the report to be untrue.

Sir Lionel Silent.

"I shall make no reply to any further inquiry on the subject," was the only answer of Sir Lionel Carden, British minister to Mexico, when informed this evening that the British foreign office, through the embassy at Washington, had denied to the American state department the authenticity of his utterances regarding the United States government's lack of understanding of conditions in Mexico.

Sir Lionel appeared to be slightly annoyed by the importance that had been attached to his interview.

The British minister finds himself the object of much interest on the part of newspaper men who are besieging him for further comment on the British-American controversy. Dispatches shown him saying British newspapers believed him to have been misquoted failed to move him to a denial of the statements recently credited to him.

Sir Lionel appears to take the ground that his opinion has been given undue importance and that it should not have been construed as a criticism of Washington. On the subject of the methods which should be employed to end the strife in Mexico, the minister, while frankly willing to express his private opinion, declined to authorize a further statement.

DIAZ IN VERA CRUZ NEAR U. S. CONSULATE

Vera Cruz, October 24.—General Felix Diaz tonight still remained in the hotel here adjoining the American consulate, where he went last night after he left his home accompanied by John Lind, American consul; W. W. Canada, and a number of friends. The authorities insist they have no order for the arrest of the presidential candidate. Should an attempt be made to take him into custody, it is believed he will seek safety in the American consulate.

Men representing five members of the state legislature, who anticipate arrest, have appealed to Mr. Canada for asylum in their behalf. To the applicants Mr. Canada replied that asylum would be granted only on the direct solicitation of persons desiring protection. No arrests of importance were made here today, but members of the chamber of deputies in Vera Cruz are alarmed since five of the men already imprisoned are members of the legislature, and they believe themselves to be under surveillance.

Daniel and Everisto Madero, brothers of the late President Madero, who were arrested recently at Monterey by federal troops on a charge of conspiracy, have personally appealed through the American consul at Tampico for intervention in their behalf by the United States.

BRITISH PRESS ALIVE TO GRAVITY OF AFFAIR

London, October 24.—"Owing to important business," Walter R. Page, the United States ambassador, last night excused himself from keeping an engagement to preside over the lecture of an American professor, whose subject was "Great Britain and the United States." The ambassador's "important business" is believed here to have been connected with the Mexican situation."

The British press is now completely alive to the gravity of the Mexican affair. The Daily Graphic, which finds it significant that one of the secretaries of Foreign Secretary Grey, Sir William G. Tyrrell, is being sent to Washington, again in an editorial today denounces President Huerta, whose statement of Thursday, it says, proves his unfitness for any responsible office and abundantly justifies President Wilson's refusal to award resognition to his government.

The Graphic, however, is almost alone in the view that Great Britain is wrong in recognizing Huerta. The tendency of the editorial opinioin generally is to regard it as impossible that the two English-speaking peoples should "quarrel over the affairs of a South American country."

At the same time The Dail Telegraph recognizes the serious danger of Huerta attempting "to marshal the people of the United States and the less interested nations of the old world into opposing camps," and says it feels convinced that the good sense and political wisdom in America will see the risk and by sagacity and restraint avoid it.

The Standard declares it sees nothing discreditable in the British government looking after British interests in oil in Mexico, since other nations protect their commercial interests in a similar manner. The newspaper contends that commercial competition ought not to prevent political friendship.

Comment by Maxim.

Sir Hiram Maxim, writing in The Morning Post, says the enormous growth of the Anglo-Saxon population in North America makes the eventual absorption of Mexico inevitable. Therefore, he adds, Great Britain ought not to put the brake on the wheels of progress and rightly or wrongly she should support the American policy in Mexico.

The Daily News, in a strong editorial, demands the recall of Minister Sir Lionel Carden on the ground that he is doing his best to help President Huerta in his design to set the British and American governments at loggerheads. The News says:

"The maintenance of American friendship is the keystone of British policy. Not all the British capital invested in Mexico would compensate for the risk of losing America's friendship, and under the present circumstances it would be our duty and the plainest commonsense to acquiese in the American policy, even though we thought it mistaken.

"But President Wilson's policy is not a mistaken one. All that has happened in Mexico confirms the keenness of his insight and justifies the courage of his conduct. We are not prepared to sacrifice the friendship of the United States at the dictation of a few rich speculators. Let the foreign office understand that."

The Daily Mail complains of President Wilson's sphynx-like silence concerning his plans for solving the Mexican difficulty. It says he refused to recognize Huerta, but offers no alternative solution.

"If he would frankly show in what direction his way lies," The Mail says, "it would facilitate the task of British statesmen, who, like himself, are solely concerned to restore to Mexico the boon of a lasting peace."

The Daily Chronicle protests that Great Britain has no desire to add to the difficulties of the United States, and expresses the hope that the election in Mexico will not be too closely scrutinized, and that it will insure the selection of a president who can work with American support.

WASHINGTON MAY SEND ENVOY TO THE REBELS

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, October 24.—Reports from Hermosillo today were that the Washington government was preparing to negotiate with General Venustiano Carranza, leader of the constitutionalist movement in the north, through a special envoy to be appointed by President Wilson. It was said that General Carranza already had wired instructions for the preparation of quarters to be occupied by the special representative.

It is reported that the envoy to Carranza will undertake duties similar to those imposed upon John Lind, President Wilson's special representative at Vera Cruz.

REPORTS SAY REBELS ENTERED MONTEREY

Washington, October 24.—Reports to constitutionalist headquarters here tonight announced that Rebel General Calextro Coutreres, with several thousand men, had fought his way into the outskirts of Monterey and with heavy artillery planted at the railway station was bombarding the federal works inside the town.

Mexico City, October 24.—Fighting for possession of Monterey was still being continued fiercely by the federals and rebels at noon today. At that hour there was no indication as to how the battle was going. Both sides had kept up a fire practically all night. Monterey was still cut off from communication tonight. It is known, however, that nine troop trains with some 2,000 soldiers have reached a point 15 miles south of Monterey and that the men detrained and started afoot toward the city. Railroad men here believe federal forces still hold Monterey.

TO ASK $200,000 FOR NEW SCHOOLS

various suggestions that have been offered it is expected that there will be considerable relief given next year.

One of the biggest items of indebtedness to be met next year will be the payment of $135,000 on the new crematory. Possibly the city will be called upon to pay $106,000 for the fire alarm system.

The crematory has not been tested by the city, and is still in the hands of the contractor. If the city is not forced to meet the $135,000 payment next year the finance committee can be a little more liberal to the schools. The fire alarm system has been completed, and under the recent decision of the supreme court the full amount of the contract must be paid in one year—that is, the council of 1914 cannot carry over any part of the sum total into 1915. It is obvious, from conditions as they are today, that the city will have to meet this amount.

Provide for Payment.

The finance committee has already practically provided for the payment of these two items.

But Mayor Woodward now says that he will not pay $106,000 cash for the fircalarm system. In the original contract the company agreed to install the system for $106,000 and let the city pay for it in installments covering a period of five or six years.

Mayor Woodward says that the city will be entitled to a rebate for settlement on a cash basis. He has intimated that $80,000 in cold cash ought to attract the contractors. He intends putting the proposition to the representatives of the company just as soon as they approach him.

Councilman Claude Ashley says he hopes to save the city some more money on the crematory. He has not stated definitely how much he intends to save, but it is understood that he expects to have $35,000 more knocked off the price. Councilman Ashley says with $10,000 he can put the crematory fire alarm system. In the original contractors are spending money every day on the plant, and that he believes that they can save money by offering the plant to the city now for $100,000.

This will mean a saving of $25,000 more for the city, which does not include $10,000 possible less—which must be used on the plant.

Financial Situation.

With the following amounts shaved from the finance sheet the city will have to spend on schools and other improvements next year:

From sewer contingent fund about	$50,000
From crematory contract	25,000
From fire alarm contract	25,000
Making a total of	$100,000

The various suggestions will be discussed by the school board committee, and a report urging that council adopt the most feasible method of raising funds will be submitted.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE URGED BY JONES

Man Who Gives Up Seat in Car Yet Refuses Woman a Vote Is Guilty of False Chivalry.

Branding as false the chivalry of the southern gentleman who gave up his seat in a street car yet denied the right of the ballot to the women of the state and paralleling his example by using as an illustration the man who would remove his hat in an elevator and then refuse to pay his stenographer a decent living wage, Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor, astonished his auditors at last night's meeting of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association held at the Ansley hotel.

Mr. Jones spoke before an audience of over 100 members of the association, using as his topic, "Suffrage and Labor."

"Away back in 1887, long before there was such a party as the progressives, the labor party incorporated in their national platform a plank standing for the equal rights of women," said Mr. Jones. "From that day to this, the Federation of American Labor has stood firmly for this movement and is today one of its greatest advocates.

"There is no sentiment back of this stand of labor. It is simply a matter of right and justice. It is right that the women who help produce the nation's wealth—by those women I mean the industrial women, those who work in mills, factories and shops—should have the right to say who shall govern them.

Small Respect for This Brand.

"I have small respect for the brand of chivalry that we see sometimes in this city and in fact all over this state—the brand of false politeness to the women that will cause a man to give up his seat in a street car, yet deny the same woman the right of intelligent use of the ballot. The man who takes off his hat in an elevator and then refuses his stenographer a decent living wage is not displaying real chivalry.

"The industrial women of the country, of whom there are over a million and a quarter, need the ballot. They need it to enact legislation that would protect their own welfare—better sanitary conditions, better wage laws, better working hour laws.

"Suffrage is coming to this state. That much is sure. When it comes we will have attained the point we started out to reach years ago."

Rev. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, reviewed the work done since the granting of equal suffrage in California.

"Since the women of the Golden state have been given the ballot the law books of that state have undergone a radical change. There are better laws on the books of the state now than ever before. The hour law limiting the working hours of women to 8 hours each day, the abolition of the dives and brothels of the big cities—all of these are due to the work of the women of ths great state of California."

Quotes Hall Caine's Book.

In an interesting review of the recent Hall Caine book, "The Women Thou Gavest Me," Rev. J. Wade Conkline quoted at length from the author's text in pointing out Caine's lesson to the world that "woman is coming into her own."

"This masterpiece of Caine's is the strongest written equal suffrage argument yet advanced," was Rev. Mr. Conklin's epitome of the matter.

Rev. Fred A. Lines, of the Universalist church, followed Rev. Conklin with a review of the work done in Kansas, where equal suffrage was recently made legal by an act of the legislature.

Rev. Line interested his audience with a short resume of the advantages to the people of Kansas which have accrued from the right of women to vote.

Mrs. Amelia Woodall, president of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, presided last night and in opening the exercises made clear the purpose of the organization which she declared was for "more homes, a single standard of morals, peace and arbitration."

Miss Katherine Koch, secretary of the association, read a long list of new members of the organization which contained the names of some of Atlanta's best known business and professional men.

Just before the meeting adjourned Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, president of the Georgia Suffrage association, made a brief address in which she expressed her appreciation at the number of persons who attended the gathering.

IMPASSIONED PLEA FOR WILBURN'S LIFE

state to convict Wilburn, and brought from a crowd which apparently believes in the boy's guilt many murmurs of applause at his attacks. He pleaded for a spirit of justice and not of sentiment to rule in the minds of the jurymen, and bitterly attacked the alleged methods of the detective who was with Wilburn before he made the confession.

The crowds on the second day of court had grown even larger than on the first, and scores of horses and mules were tied in the grove around the courthouse. The two hotels filled up their parlors with beds at night, and then were forced to turn applicants away.

In the courthouse all followed the words of the attorneys with rapt attention. The accused man never seemed to lose sight of what was being said for or against him. His face, white with a pallor strange to the rugged citizens of Jones county, showed no emotion as attorneys for the state branded him as "a traitor worse than Benedict Arnold," and depicted the state's theory for the events leading up to the crime and of the crime itself.

Even the members of the present jury venire from which the twelve men to try Mrs. King will be picked asked to be allowed to hear the argument. They had been excluded at the start of the Wilburn trial, as both sides objected to their being present and were still kept out.

More Grim Details Brought Out.

Even more of the bare and grim details of the tragedy came out during the arguments and there was nothing to relieve the sordidness of the atmosphere, except possibly a little vase of pink roses on Judge Park's desk. The bloody clothes and the rather rusty gun with which King met death lay on the floor near by, as though placed by an artist who sought contrast.

Throughout the day men pleaded with twelve men to hang one of their number, and others pleaded for his life with equal strain in their voices.

Above it all, Judge Park interrupted at times the objections of attorneys and often quoted the precise words of the law books on the question. His voice, soft as a woman's and as clear, had the peculiar drolling accent of the south. Softening the harsh sounds in words and slurring his "R's," Judge Park speaks in the voice that is true to the south and loved by southern ears.

In deciding upon the question of kinship when that came up, he quoted a decision handed down when Judge Bleckley was chief justice, and then, with a smile, followed it with the verses that the distinguished jurist wrote into the decision:

"The bride and groom each come Within
The circle of each other's kin;
But kin and kin are still no more
Related than they were before."

Claim Murder Was Not Proved.

Attorney Dean Newman, of Macon, who, with his brother, Robert Newman, and Judge J. C. Barron, of Clinton, is associated with the defense, opened the arguments.

The defense, by not introducing evidence, had gained the privilege of opening and closing. That the state had failed to establish that a murder had been committed was the opening of his speech. He also attacked vehemently the testimony of the negro, Jesse Barber, and scouted at the idea of believing Fred Stepp "a weakling and an outlaw."

Attorney F. Holmes Johnson, of Gray, made the first speech for the state. He did not review the case in great detail, and took less than half an hour. He scouted the idea of suicide or accidental death, and defended the state's witness.

"I expect that Colonel Cooper will skin Detective Moore alive," he said in concluding a defense of the detective.

Attorney J. B. Jackson, of Gray, aiding the state, followed his colleague. He stated that he had been in school with Wilburn, but that if the man did not kill King, then the case was the greatest mystery in Georgia.

He also went into the attempt of the defense to show suicide, and recalled the state's evidence, which, if believed by the jury, would make the suicide or accidental death theories impossible.

Death Penalty Demanded.

Solicitor Pottle asked the death penalty for Wilburn, and stated that justice demanded nothing short of that. He referred to him as "that worse than fiend," and stated that his alleged confession came later when his conscience awakened in him. The solicitor took slightly over an hour for his speech, and in that time went into detail, bringing out with clearness the entire theory of the state and citing testimony of various witnesses to prove his contentions.

"I have sympathy for this man," he declared, "but I am here to do my duty—that duty which you must do. General Lee called 'duty' the sublimest word in the English language, and I hope that you and I are moved by some degree of that emotion in dealing with this case."

He closed by reciting the entire revolting story told in Wilburn's confession, and his last words were a plea for the gallows for the prisoner.

Colonel Cooper, in opening, declared that the state had not established the corpus felicti. Then he turned his attention to the state's lawyers, and with a smile on his face that softened the effect, declared that unless they repented they would suffer in the next world for their "most murderous speeches."

"They can take care of themselves, but I don't want you to suffer from following them," he shouted, turning to the jury.

Masterly Effort by Cooper.

From a few moments after his opening until he became exhausted over two hours later, the attorney spoke in a voice that at times carried across the courtyard to the little church. His fiery red locks were tossed before the jury as he brought a foot down on the floor or slammed a doubled fist upon the table.

In the time that he spoke Friday afternoon the attorney went over a great part of the case, and painted Mrs. King as black as had Solicitor Pottle.

He also went for Detective Moore, continually referring to him in sarcastic tones, and always adding that he would have something to add to him before he ended.

The attorney did not concede that Mrs. King and the boy had plotted King's death, but it was when he said that if this should be believed, she was the more guilty, that he told Jones county that her men had not the nerve to hang a woman.

Effort to Disqualify Jurors.

Following the tendering in evidence by Slicitor Joseph E. Pottle of the clothes and gun of the dead man at the opening of the second day, Colonel John R. Cooper made his statement as to the alleged relationship between the two Middlebrooks, father and son, on the jury, and the Houston county family of that name, one of whom married Miss Sallie King, sister of the dead man.

After he had put eleven witnesses on the stand, including several aged men whose long white beards might have marked any one of them as Jones county's "oldest inhabitants," Colonel Cooper made the motion for a mistrial.

After argument by Solicitor Pottle, Judge J. B. Park ruled that no close connection had been shown and overruled the motion. Colonel Cooper had been unable to prove definite relationship by his witnesses. A distant cousinship was all that they swore to. The men called upon to attest the relationship were: Dr. T. A. White, who had previously been on the stand; Captain G. W. Comer, a confederate veteran; A. J. Middlebrooks, brother of Middlebrooks, Sr., on the jury; ex-Sheriff Bob Etheridge; J. C. Turner, C. C. Middlebrooks, E. P. Griffin, John W. Early, who married a Middlebrooks; Thomas Gordon, whose mother was a Middlebrooks, and John A. Childs, who "knew all the Middlebrooks, but who was not sure about the kinship."

Cooper Again Overruled.

In his effort to show that Detective C. B. Moore had been employed to secure evidence to hang Wilburn, Colonel Cooper recalled Dr. White, a state's witness, to the stand. He was overruled when he tried to ask Dr. White the question, "Who hired Moore?" The jury was then sent out and the lawyers argued their point.

With the jury in the box, the defense recalled Jesse Barber, the negro witness for the state. Barber told Colonel Cooper that he was present when Wilburn made the alleged incriminating statement. The state then used the negro to bring out its claim that no coercion had been used.

Colonel Cooper then announced that he had closed for the defense and Solicitor Pottle asked to be allowed to reopen and put Detective Moore on the stand to deny the alleged "third degree methods."

Colonel Cooper then reminded him that he said that he was not going to use Moore, that Moore had been allowed to remain in the courtroom when the rule had been enforced in regard to all others. The solicitor then called Moore off the stand.

After pleading for unlimited time on the part of the defense and the granting of three and a half hours to each side with a provision that if he saw fit later, he would grant more, Judge Park ordered the arguments to proceed.

Friends to Celebrate Tonight Judge Newman's 70th Birthday

In celebration of his seventieth birthday, Judge William T. Newman, of the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia, will be honored tonight by a banquet given at the Capital City club by 250 of his friends, including distinguished members of the bar, from all parts of the south, and Georgians who stand high in every profession.

Judge Newman has served in his position for more than thirty years and recently became entitled, under the federal law, to retire from the bench on full pay. At the urgent request, however, of many of the lawyers practicing in this court, supplemented by similar requests from a great number of citizens residing in this district, he decided to forego this privilege and agreed to continue indefinitely his service as federal judge.

Most elaborate preparations have been made for the banquet, and the program includes toasts by Georgia's best known men. Albert Howell will act as toastmaster, and Governor Slaton will respond to one of the toasts.

"This dinner," said one of the committee last night, "is not to determine who can make the best speech, but is simply intended to show our esteem and high regard for Judge Newman."

With every one standing, the first toast of the evening will be delivered by Albert Howell, the toastmaster, "To the President of the United States."

Other toasts wil be the following:

"To Our Honored Guest," by Eugene Black.

"To the State of Georgia," by Governor Slaton.

"To the Judiciary," by Judge J. H. Lumpkin.

"To the United States District Court of the Northern District of Georgia," by W. A. Charters, of Gainesville.

"To Comrades of Long Ago," by Colonel R. J. Lowry.

"Fellow Citizens," by Captain J. W. English.

"To the Atlanta Bar," by Reuben Arnold.

FIREMAN IS INJURED IN WRECK ON A., B. & A.

A freight train of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad plunged through a brdige near Manchester weakened by heavy rains yesterday morning, seriously injuring Fireman Levi Holley and telescoping a number of box cars. The damage is estimated at $5,000.

Holley was caught in the wreckage while attempting to cut cars. When the trestle gave way members of the crew jumped without injury. Until the wreckage is cleared, trains will be detoured by way of Woodbury.

Peanuts and Pink Lemonade Will Soon Permeate the Air

Albena Hines and the artist model horse at Barnum & Bailey circus.

Peanuts and pink lemonade will soon be ripe and the odor of new-mown sawdust permeate the air. The Barnum and Bailey circus is exhibiting in Columbus today, and leaves there upon its own four special trains immediately after the night show, the first train bearing the stables, commissary department and a portion of the draught stock being scheduled to arrive over the Southern railway at 7 o'clock in the morning. The tents will be pitched at Ponce de Leon park, opposite the ball grounds, and two performances and a street parade given Monday.

The circus comes in an entire new dress and is said to more than ever live up to its time-honored title. Innovations crowd the program, with novelty as the keynote, the best elements of the dear, old-time circus mingling with the newest thing in gorgeous spectacle and ballet. Monotony and repetition have been so completely eliminated that old-timers will rub their eyes in astonishment.

Animal acts will be varied, novel and striking. The baseball elephants will tickle every beholder. The Mikado's jiu jitsu champions will give interesting exhibitions of their national mode of defense, as will the Icelandic troupe. Among the spangled riders, whose names are generations old in the world of "spangles and sawdust," will be seen the Davenports, Bradna and Derrick, the Ducander's, Rose Myers and Charles Seigrist. Italy sends the Schiavon troupe; Switzerland, the Berne brothers; Lupeta Perea comes heralded as the most remarkable girl aerialist in Spain. Julia Gonzales will represent Cuba's claim to supremacy. England, France Germany and Belgium contribute their champions, while America's gonfalon will be upheld by Bird Millman, and Albena Hines with her artist model horse. There are over 100 distinct displays on the program and the introductory spectacle, "Cleopatra," has a cast of over a thousand, and a large ballet. The zoo has been enlarged and there will be a big display of wild animal life.

All the tents will be raised tomorrow with the exception of the main tent which will not be erected until Monday morning. It is what is known as a "seven-pole top" and a whopper for size. The parade will be at 10 o'clock Monday morning over a route to be announced tomorrow.

ATLANTA BOOSTED FOR ROADS MEET

Atlanta's chances for the 1914 convention of the American Road congress were given a big boost by Charles P. Light, field secretary of the American highway commission and secretary to the president of the American Road congress, at a banquet tendered in his honor last night at the Kimball house by the Atlanta Hotel Men's association. The claims of Atlanta as the logical meeting point for the congress were so clearly set forth that Mr. Light stated in his address that he could see no reason why Atlanta should not be selected as the point of the 1914 congress and pledged himself to do everything in his power to have this city named.

Nearly thirty members of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, representing every leading hotel of the city, were in attendance at the banquet. In addition Mayor Woodward, Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton county commissioners of roads and revenues; C. J. Haden, president of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce; Lee M. Jordan, attorney for the hotel association; W. H. Leahy, secretary of the industrial and statistical bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Ivan E. Allen, president of the Atlanta convention bureau, and Wylie West, of the Atlanta Automobile association, were present to assist in extending the invitation to the American Road congress, through Mr. Light, to hold its 1914 convention in Atlanta.

Light Boosts Atlanta.

J. Lee Barnes, of the Majestic hotel, who is president of the hotel association, presided as toastmaster, and after a most excellent dinner, introduced Mr. Light, the guest of honor, and first speaker on the program.

"It has been my great pleasure and good fortune to be shown over your beautiful city by Mr. Houser and other progressive citizens of Atlanta during the day," said Mr. Light, "and I wish to state to you gentlemen that never in my life have I seen a city better fitted and equipped to handle a convention of the size and importance of the American Road congress.

"We will bring to Atlanta, in the event that this city is selected as the 1914 meeting place of the good roads congress, more than 6,000 delegates. It would be the greatest advertisement that Atlanta could possibly secure.

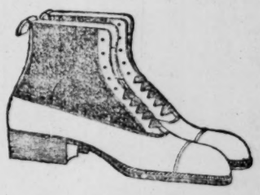

"To get down to brass tacks: The American Road congress will meet in the south next year. There are fifteen cities bidding for the great meeting, but the strongest competitor of Atlanta will be New Orleans. The Louisiana metropolis is holding out to us very strong inducements for their city, but I am confident, after looking over your city and from assurances of accommodations that I have received from your leading citizens, that Atlanta is the logical point for next year's meeting, and although I cannot make any definite promises, I wish to assure you gentlemen that I will do everything within my power to swing the congres to your city next year.

PHONE EARLY AND AVOID THE RUSH

AT THE THEATERS.

"Quo Vadis."
(At the Grand.)

Two performances this afternoon, the first one at 2 o'clock, the next at 4 o'clock, and two tonight, the first at 7 o'clock and the last at 9 o'clock, will be the last opportunity for students and all who desire to witness "Quo Vadis" to do so.

This wonderful eight-reel photo-play was presented at the Grand last summer for two weeks, and while the house was crowded all during those two weeks, there were evidently thousands who were unable to witness the play, being off on summer vacations, and others who desired to see it again.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Today's performances, matinee and night, marks the termination of this week's popular favorites at the Forsyth theater. Lynn Overman and company in their clever sketch have made a great impression, and "Scream" Welch, the great big, funny, fat, screamingly funny fellow, with his two clever partners, who are the greatest tumblers seen on a local stage, will ever find a welcome here. The music lovers have had a rare treat all the week in the offering of the Florentine Singers in grand opera. For next week the headliners will be Harry Bulger and Herbert Corthell in a funny bit of comedy, and Homer Miles and company will offer the sketch, "On the Edge of Things." An added feature will be Al Rayno's dogs, and there will also be a "skating bear."

"The Third Degree."
(At the Lyric.)

Remarkable in its appealing interest and stirring in its dramatic climaxes, Charles Klein's splendid play, "The Third Degree," which will be presented next week at the Lyric, stands out as one of the most interesting attractions of the season at the Carnegie Way theater. A cast of merit, headed by Miss Grayce Scott, will interpret the plays and judging from the cordial reception that has been given the play and players in other cities, a real treat is in store for patrons of the Lyric next week. "The Third Degree" deals with the methods that have been employed and are still being used by police departments in various cities to extract confessions and incriminating evidence from suspected criminals.

"Knobs o' Tennessee."
(At the Bijou.)

The matinee today and performance tonight will close the ninth week of the Jewell Kelley company's engagement at the Bijou. Hal Reid's sensational melodrama "Knobs o' Tennessee" has made many friends for the company and brought to the popular playhouse scores of new faces. It is safe to say that no stock company that has appeared in Atlanta of late years has given a better scenic production or a more pleasing performance than the Jewell Kelley presentation of "Knobs o' Tennessee." Next week will bring a new rural comedy drama entitled "An Orphan's Prayer," with Miss Rose Morris, one of the most popular members of the company, in the title role.

"Salome" Opera in English.
(At the Atlanta.)

This afternoon the Massenet opera, "Salome," will be heard at the Atlanta in English, the Sheehan-Beck company presenting it in a sumptuous and dignified manner. The singing of the company and the fine work of the augmented orchestra won the enthusiastic approval of the opera lovers and critics at the first two performances and this afternoon a packed house is expected to greet the players. The opera will be given again tonight for the last time. The presentation is so impressive and so dignified and has hit the hearts of the opera people so strongly that those who miss it will miss the best English grand opera ever given in Atlanta.

Annie Russell.
(At the Atlanta.)

The engagement of Miss Annie Russell and her very fine comedy company will begin at the Atlanta Monday and continue through Wednesday. Seats are now selling for the performances, which have the endorsement of the Drama league and all the lovers of what is best on the stage. Miss Russell is surrounded by the finest company of players outside New York. She will give "She Stoops to Conquer" at all performances except Wednesday night, when "The Rivals" will be played. These comedies are the merriest of all times and given by such an excellent company as that with Miss Russell they are expected to please all.

"Good Ship Nancy Hanks."
(At the Columbia.)

Next week's offering at the Columbia burlesque theater will eclipse any previous offering. Fred Kennedy and Lucretia Vincent will be seen in the leading roles in "The New Office Girl," which has a reputation of being the smoothest show out of New York. In addition there will be a number of high-class specialty acts. "The Good Ship Nancy Hanks" will close with matinee today and two night performances.

HOTEL ANSLEY PLANS BIG HALLOWE'EN PARTY

According to announcement, made by the management of the Hotel Ansley, the hallowe'en party at the Forsyth street inn will be one from which Atlantans will thereafter date time.

Invitations are being sent out by the hotel bidding the city make merry at the hotel on Friday night, the 31st.

Special decorations, two orchestras, specially prepared menus and "scary spooks" will assist in making the evening enjoyable.

Reservations for the occasion can be made by telephoning the hotel.

Will Bring Negro Back.

City Detective John Black left here last night for Spartanburg, S. C., to secure Dean Dent, a negro, who was captured in Spartanburg Wednesday night. Dent is wanted in Atlanta for highway robbery. Less than a month ago Dent and a negress held up George Themlis, a well-to-do Greek, of Atlanta, at the corner of Ivy and Houston streets, it is charged. The woman was caught, and has since been indicted by the grand jury.

The address of the Washington Bureau is No. 1727 S Street, N. W., Mr. John Corrigan, Jr., staff correspondent, in charge.

THE CONSTITUTION is on sale in New York city by 2 p. m. the day after issue. It can be had at Hotaling's Newsstands, Broadway and Forty-second street (Times building corner), Thirty-eighth street and Broadway and Twenty-ninth street and Broadway.

The Constitution is not responsible for advance payments to out-of-town local carriers, dealers or agents.

ACTION NEEDED---NOW!

The board of education is going to "investigate" the deficiencies of the public school system.

That was decided at the recent monthly meeting of the board.

A month hence the probing committee will report to the board. The board will then digest the report. The board will then refer the report to council with an "urgent request" that the situation be given "immediate consideration."

This means that two months after The Constitution exposed the fact that 92 tots were being "educated" in one grade of a school, 84 in another and 74 in another, and in a second school three grades of children were being taught in close proximity to a basement sewer, council will be "urgently requested" to find a remedy.

The Constitution does not question the good intentions of the board, nor its devotion to its work. The Constitution does urge that the crisis is one for EMERGENCY measures and not for roundabout ceremonial and red tape.

Certainly the whole system needs probing and reconstruction. The superintendent, the principals, the patrons, the public know that.

But the need of the moment is the abatement of the menace hovering over several of the schools. The people look to the BOARD, not to council.

Let the board meet every day, if necessary, until this is accomplished.

Then it may with consistency address itself to the issue of fundamental reforms.

THE FAIR AND THE STATE.

Governor John M. Slaton has acted with statesmanlike vision in declaring that the state of Georgia should give financial assistance to the Georgia state fair.

He advanced this policy in a speech made during his recent visit to the fair at Macon.

In so doing he declared that while the present condition of the state's finances would not justify such expenditures, he hoped that this embarrassment would be obviated at an early date.

The early operation of the new tax equalization bill offers hope in that direction.

The Macon display is one of the most attractive and instructive held in years. It is well worth a visit from the farmer, the business man, the general worker for development in Georgia.

It could have been vastly improved and its scope extended had it received the aid it had a right to expect from the state treasury.

It is needless to say that agriculture is one of the pillars of wealth in Georgia.

The future of the state is largely bound up in a utilization of the richness of the soil and the variety of the products it will bring forth.

Ocular demonstration is one of the most effectual arguments in that direction. Statewide fairs afford splendid ocular demonstration.

It is not enough to make these institutions an annual event, wealthy in interest to the farmers who participate in them and fascinating to the casual observer.

The state fairs should also be an exhibit on a huge scale of the possibilities of Georgia agriculture, brought down to the minute and covering the smallest detail.

The dividends to be expected from a display of this breadth are so essentially of a community nature that the state may well afford to bear its part of the expense.

By the time the next legislature meets the state's finances should be fairly on the way to mending and state aid to the state fair will be well worth serious consideration.

A SPLENDID MEMORIAL.

The Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, in convention at Moultrie, have made an inspiringly practical disposition of the $10,000 Francis S. Bartow memorial fund. By a heavy majority it has been decided to invest that sum in land adjacent to the mountain school conducted by Andrew J. Ritchie, at Rabun Gap. The land is to be devoted to the uses of the school and its upkeep will be paid by the institution, but the title will remain with the Daughters.

As The Constitution detailed in a recent analysis of the Ritchie school, that institution is engaged in one of the most praiseworthy education enterprises in the south.

Mountain boys and girls heretofore deprived of opportunities through the isolation of the Blue Ridge are now being educated not merely for academic pursuits, but for the vocations that lie to their hands in the mountains.

They are being trained to live well and profitably and happily and above all to grow, at home. They are being shown how to utilize the enormous possibilites at their elbows, in contradistinction to the forlorn hope formerly opened to them of leaving home to build a dubious "career."

The disposition made of the Bartow memorial is a particularly happy one. It is to be put into land which will be used to teach mountain boys cattle raising. The beef industry, especially in the mountain regions, is one of the greatest future assets of the state.

Thus, the fund will be most usefully applied to uplifting humanity.

THE LEGAL MOB SPIRIT.

The Constitution wishes every legislator and citizen in the state could read the full text of the address delivered recently by Judge George Hillyer to the students of the Atlanta Law school. He intimated strongly that until the present trend of laws in this state was changed, they would operate strongly to encourage contempt of courts and what might be called the legal mob spirit. Such strong utterances coming from an irresponsible source might draw laughter and condemnation. Expressed by Judge Hillyer they must command respect and inspire thought. He is one of the most conservative citizens of Georgia, and held the bench in this state in the days of chaos, when courage was required to rehabilitate law and order and the courts. He is not a radical. His inclination is toward measured speech and careful accusation.

The chief trouble, the judge thinks, is that the laws of Georgia, in a greater degree than those of most other American commonwealths, place society at an unfair advantage with the criminal. The Constitution has often emphasized this fault. It is not contended that accused men should not be given every benefit of the doubt and a full opportunity to establish their innocence. According to Judge Hillyer, and by common knowledge, procedure in this state goes incomparably farther.

There is rarely a strong guarantee that men convicted by a jury will meet the penalty to which they are sentenced. Delays and technicalites abound. There is, too, always the ready change of venue available to the defense but withheld from the state, unless the defense consents, an unlikely thing.

Judge Hillyer read an editorial written recently by Roosevelt, in which the latter said that a condition of this nature encouraged the mob spirit. And that is true. It encourages also a distrust of and contempt for law and a sense of helplessness on part of the citizen who is really a strong partisan of orderly judicial procedure. It is refreshing to hear Judge Hillyer charge the fault where it belongs, to the laws themselves and not to their administrators. What is needed is a thorough legal and judicial house-cleaning, the sweeping away of the trash and impediments that have been gathering during the decades. As Judge Hillyer shows, the responsibility rests in the last analysis on the legislature. A high place in history awaits the general assembly with nerve and intelligence enough to attack this problem with both hands and settle it in a spirit of enlightened wisdom.

If Sulzer is elected to the New York legislature among the things he will have to remind him of Tammany will be the tomahawk up his sleeve.

Perhaps Mexico wouldn't dance such terrible tangoes if the film men would leave her alone.

Nothing doing in South America yet, but give the Colonel a chance.

They would work the recall on Huerta in quick order, but those with influence prefer to keep their heads on straight.

Henry Lane Wilson should cheer up. One o' these days somebody will nominate him for mayor of Grouchtown.

Mars is sending us signals which the astronomers report as being of a grape-juice color. But of course the state department will ignore them.

No doubt the British government secretly approves of Mrs. Pankhurst's lecture tour—in the United States.

This country is eating Mexican beef, and it isn't quite as tough as the situation over there.

Congress never has to ask what to do next. Wilson saves it that trouble.

Just From Georgia

By FRANK L. STANTON

Love at the Door.

I.

Life time—joy time, and Love at the door,
Rich you are, my honey, though the world may rate you poor.
Though the heart's best riches the cynic-folk condemn,
Let your tresses out full length—I kiss the gold of them!

II.

Love is the joy time and the wealth untold:
Your lips the rarest rubies—your hair heaven's brightest gold.
When Love's life lay dying—lost there, in the strife,
Your lips to Love's replying kissed him back to life!

III.

Life time—Joy time, and Love at the door;
Give to me Love's riches and I shall want no more;
All the storms will vanish—rainbows light the skies,
Life forever singing in the morning of Love's eyes!

* * * * *

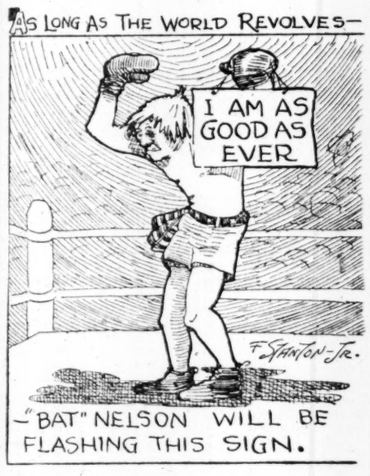

Georgia Nuggets.

Taking the right road is like locking the door on Trouble, but folks that lock him out lose their judgment celebrating his absence, and he's in at the window in no time.

You can't blame Misery for wanting company, but entertain him all night, and he'll want you to go a mile with him on the morrow.

A little blaze on a hilltop lights a long way, but down in the valley you may have to burn the winter's wood before the world locates you.

* * * * *

* * * * *

The Gifts of Golden Days.

Our halleluia's raisin'
For the gifts of golden days,
We'll keep the big world blazin'
Till the stars cry: "Let 'er blaze!"
Voices musically
Will ring from hill and valley,
And at the Good Times rally,
Our song of joy we'll raise.

Folks from highest stations
A happy land 'll view;
We've bread to feed the nations,
Cotton to clothe 'em, too.
Till all, of Dixie singin',
Where joys, weed-thick, are springin',
Will send the music ringin':
"Best times we ever knew!"

* * * * *

The "Uplift" Feels Mighty Low.

The editor of The Hartville Uplift fires this shot:

"Oh, yes! You are all d— good fellows. You all have a five or ten to throw on the bar. But do you ever think of paying up your subscription to The Uplift? That is something that interests us most vitally! Bring us in a sack of potatoes or the front leg of a chicken on that subscription. It all counts. We have four little girls. They all eat meat and spuds."

* * * * *

Ungrateful Constituents.

There should be more welcome for returning congressmen than is contained in, the following:

"When the last problem's settled,
This way they're sure to roam;
We'll have to be resigned to it:
Wilson will send 'em home!"

* * * * *

Wants "Literary Hands."

"I've been told that literary writers were no good," says a southwest Georgia farmer, "but I was told wrong. I worked six of 'em last summer, and they gave full satisfaction. I've got a lot of land to clear up this winter, and I want it known that I'm in the market for literary hands. The hungrier they come, the better. I've plenty of work and plenty of vittles."

* * * * *

The Little Blaze.

The faithful heart's what we admire
Along the toiling ways;
You may not make the signal fire,
But keep yer little blaze!

Keep it twinklin' in the night—
Little of its kind,
But the world 'll see its light
And leave the Dark behind.

* * * * *

Why Is He Silent?

In spite of all that has been accomplished The Whitsett Courier says:

"With a few brains and a sharp pair of scissors we can tell the administration more about running the country than it could learn from a whole course of Bryan chautauqua lectures."

* * * * *

Everybody Wins.

The Dalton Citizen poet and philosopher takes this comfortable view of it:

"The 'prohis' have their whisky law;
The whisky men their 'booze;'
The wisest way I ever saw—
For neither side can lose."

* * * * *

Not in Line.

A Georgia editor says that the newspaper business has disqualified him for a foreign mission as "he can only swear intelligently in plain American English."

* * * * *

The Best Trust.

Trusts, with many a scourging rod—
Life has them all for neighbor,
But the best trust is trust in God
And strength to labor.

* * * * *

Sizing Him Up.

"Dat lawyer talked ter jedge an' jury fer all de worl' lak' he wuz tellin' de truth," said the old colored client, "but I reckon both jedge an' jury knowed him, fer it didn't take de jury ten minutes ter say I wuz guilty, an' de jedge looked lak' he thought my lawyer wuz, too."

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON, The Famous Prose Poet.

AS TO ETIQUETTE.

"Permit me to call your attention to a most remarkable book," said the oily tongued stranger. "It gives all the rules of etiquette governing good society, and so is of inestimable value. Every woman wishes to be known as a charming hostess, but unless she knows how to entertain properly she is sure to make herself ridiculous. This book, my dear madam—"

"I'm not your dear madam," interrupted Mrs. Curfew, "and I don't want you to get too familiar on first acquaintance. I've never seen you before, mister, and here you stand calling me your dear madam just as though we had gone to school together. And I must say that a man who goes around addressing strange ladies in such familiar terms should have pride enough to wear a respectable necktie. I'd never consent to be called pet names by a man who wears such a necktie as yours.

"As for your books of etiquette, you'd better go and sell them to people who need them. Thank goodness, I don't entertain much, but when ladies do come here to spend the afternoon I think I know how to conduct myself without taking lessons from a correspondence school, or consulting such a book as you are carrying around. If all the women in this community knew as much about etiquette as I do, there would be some pleasure in entertaining them, but as things are, I dread to see them coming to this house, for they pay no attention whatever to social forms and ceremonies, and conduct themselves on the free for all principle.

"On the fifteenth of last month my daughter was visiting me, and we decided to invite a few neighbors to celebrate her tin wedding, as that was the anniversary of her marriage. Most of the women in the neighborhood came, and each one brought a tin utensil of some kind, and I had a large table in the sitting room to hold them. When everybody had arrived there was a pile of tinware on that table that was a sight to be seen, and my daughter was perfectly delighted for every good housekeeper likes to have plenty of tinware. It seemed at first that nothing would mar the happy occasion, but I was reckoning without my host, so to speak.

"I had forgotten when inviting the guests that Mrs. Geewhillikens and Mrs. Turpentine are ancient enemies. I don't pay much attention to the gossip and scandal of the neighborhood, and such things slip my memory. Even after they had arrived I never thought of their enmity until the spiteful remarks of Mrs. Turpentine attracted my attention. Every time Mrs. Geewhillikens made a remark, Mrs. Turpentine would say something in a sneering way. She was hunting for trouble so openly that it couldn't be overlooked. I'll say it to the credit of Mrs. Geewhillikens that she acted like a perfect lady at first. She just ignored Mrs. Turpentine's remarks, as though she hadn't heard them.

"I wonder if your book of etiquette tells what a charming hostess should do under such circumstances. I saw that a storm was brewing, but I was perfectly helpless. I couldn't forbid Mrs. Geewhillikens' making remarks, and I couldn't prevent Mrs. Turpentine from replying to them. Finally, Mrs. Turpentine made some observation that was simply outrageous, and Mrs. Geewhillikens got up and said she would not remain here to be insulted by such an old mischief maker as Mrs. Turpentine.

"'Call me an old mischief maker, will you?' shrieked Mrs. Turpentine, and she hit Mrs. Geewhillikens over the head with a big tin dipper, and Mrs. Geewhillikens grabbed a twelve-quart bucket and knocked Mrs. Turpentine off her feet with it, and before I realized what was happening the place was full of flying tinware. All the ladies took a hand, and Mrs. Ripsaw had her nose split with a colander, and a big cake tin blackened one of Mrs. Doolittle's eyes, and my daughter's presents were all ruined. I suppose you will contend that I should have read a chapter of your book at that trying time but the ladies were in no mood for literature. Neither am I at this writing, so you will please evaporate at once."

The Shade of Stead.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Sir Alfred Turner, Carlyle house, Chelsea embankment, London, has written a book which is now on the eve of publication. So he is talking about it. Sir Alfred is a spiritualist. One of his closest friends was the newspaper man, W. T. Stead, who went down in the Titanic disaster.

"Mr. Stead," says Sir Alfred, "appeared to me within a week of the disaster. The first manifestation occurred in this very room (at Carlyle house). First came a shadow on a glass, then an audible voice, 'Can you show?' I at once said to the voice, 'No, I cannot,' came the reply, 'not now; but go to my house at Wimbledon. I shall appear there.'"

So Sir Alfred went to the W. T. Stead home at Wimbledon. "Mr. Stead," he narrates, "appeared twice at my right shoulder. The appearances were short and transient, not exactly flashes—more than that—but they rapidly faded. The voice was very well heard."

He had no doubt but that it was Stead's voice. "'I am happy to be with you again,' was the first word of greeting. 'When the Titanic sank,' said the voice, 'there was for myself a short, sharp struggle to regain breath, and I came to my senses—it seemed in an instant—surrounded by hundreds of beings who, like myself, had passed over to a new existence, but were utterly unable to realize what had happened.

"'They were quite unconscious of the fact,' the voice went on, 'that they were not still in the flesh. They were groping about in obscurity and uncertainty, and I set myself at once to do missionary work by enlightening the people as to what had happened and what was their new condition.

"'In such work,' he told us, 'I am still engaged. Numerous spirits, inhabitants of the next plane, devote themselves to the task of enlightening those who have passed over, and it is remarkable how many people on passing have no knowledge of the change in their state.'"

The Bird and the Beacon.

Poor bird that battlest with the storm,
To gain the beacon light,
Then fall'st a wounded woful form
Into the gulfs of night!
A thousand lips that light may bless;
To thee 'tis the last bitterness.

A light was given to the earth,
Wearing a woman's name,
A thousand tongues have told her worth,
And deathless is her fame.
But I was the spent bird, that there
Salvation sought, and found despair.

Gas.

(From The London Chronicle.)

Who first used the word "gas" and why? Merely because of the supposed resemblance of the product of burning carbon to the "chaos" of the Greeks. "This spirit, hitherto unknown," wrote the experimenter, Van Helmont, in 1648. "I call by the new name gas, and I call it so because, being untamable, it is scarcely distinguishable from the chaos of the ancients." A glimpse at modern gas devices will show how far removed from untamability is the gas of today.

The World's Mysteries

WAS GALILEO TORTURED?

The world has been made well aware of the opposition which Galileo experienced from the ecclesiastical authorities of his age; but it is remarkable that the first resistance that he met with came from those who were philosophers like himself. The stories that have been told against the treatment of Galileo by the Inquisition are not founded on facts. It is true that his doctrines brought him a certain amount of trouble, but, by a little discreet management, he might have escaped censure. He was, however, of an ardent disposition, and being assailed by a preacher he was tempted to bring out a pamphlet defending his views, and in reality adding to the offense he had already given This brought him before the Inquisition in 1615 and he was obliged to disavow all his doctrines and solemnly engage never again to teach them.

The story of the torture and illtreatment of Galileo by the Inquisition has been told so frequently in history and so well embellished, that it is credited by the majority of people. The Villa Medici, where Galileo was detained, was never in any sense a prison, but was and is one of the most sumptuous palaces in Rome.

In the biography of Galileo by Blot is a letter of Galileo's dated 1633, in which he speaks of enjoying the delightful gardens. It was, indeed, his biographer says, the very opposite of a prison, for, being the resident of a Tuscan ambassador, it was exactly the spot where, of all others, a Tuscan was freest. He was allowed to write to and to receive whom he pleased, says his biographer, and was always attended by his own faithful and favorite servants.

In December of this same year he had liberty to reside in the environs of Florence, and soon after to inhabit any part of his own Florence at will. Here he passed the remainder of his days and died in 1642 at the ripe old age of seventy-eight.

This was one story of Galileo's detention. Another writer denies that the literary and scientific men were jealous of him, and that they were his worst enemies. As to this story he says: "Of this story there is, I believe, no evidence whatever, and although no one believes now that Galileo was actually put to the torture by order of the Inquisition, he was undoubtedly imprisoned for a short time and compelled, under threats, to abjure the doctrine of the earth's motion."

Whewell, in his "History of Inductive Science," has devoted considerable attention to Galileo and his imprisonment. He argues that the abjuration was a solemn farce, equally discreditable to the enjoiners and the enjoined, to pander to the popular view of the interpretation of Scripture on the earth's supposed immobility. However that may be, there is no doubt Galileo was an unwilling party to the farce, although he had not sufficient spirit of the martyr to run the risk of refusing to make the abjuration. The often repeated story that he exclaimed under his breath, "but the world does move," when he was made to say that it did not, was probably a graphical representation in later times of the sentiment he must have felt at the absurdity.

This same writer further says: "Speaking of his own persecution of the early believers in Christ, St. Paul is made to say, in the authorized version: 'I compelled them to blaspheme.' The revised more accurately represents the original as 'I strove to make them blaspheme.' Would that the attempt of the Inquisition to make Galileo abjure and curse a doctrine in which he believed had been equally unsuccessful, but it was not so, and the account forms one of the saddest chapters in the history of science."

Sir David Brewster is authority for the statement that investigations would prove that Galileo was created with a marked deference and generosity by the principal members and highest dignitaries of the church.

John Gerard, who in every way had made himself thoroughly familiar with the life of Galileo after the supposed ban had been placed on his teachings, wrote as follows: "It is untrue to speak of him as in any proper sense a 'prisoner.' As his Protestant biographer von Gebler tells us, 'One glance at the truest historical source for the famous trial, would convince any one that Galileo spent altogether twenty-two days in the building of the Inquisition, and even then not in a prison cell with barred windows, but in the handsome and commodious apartment of an official of the Inquisition.'

"For the rest he was allowed to use as his places of confinement the houses of friends, always comfortable and usually luxurious. It would therefore appear as wholly untrue that he was—as is constantly stated—either tortured or blinded by his prosecutors—though in 1637, five years before his death, he became totally blind—or that he was refused burial in consecrated grounds."

EDGE

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The story is told of a great Musician who once stated that if he missed his Practice for but a single day, He could notice the difference, and if he missed it two days, his Friends could notice it, but if he missed it three days, his Pupils would immediately notice it.

Those who know that their entire Success depends upon their being kept constantly on Edge, glady see the benefits in advance, of pushing aside the agencies that seek to steal their Rewards from them. The Athlete knows that he must live a clean, careful life in order to be kept on Edge. The student who daily does not do his best but leaves to a later date the overtaxing of his Brain and natural Cleverness to carry him through ihs final Examinations, feels the destroying effect of such a method later on when he is thrust into the battles of real Life. Curious Bits of History.

(From The Chicago News.)

Britain's next great battleship is to be called the Iron Duke, after the Duke of Wellington, although that soldier came by the nickname in a roundabout way. He was never so called until long after Waterloo. An iron steamship, a novelty at the time, was built in the Mersey and named the Duke of Wellington, and so the vessel came to be known as the Iron Duke—the transition being easy and obvious. It was the duke's union of resolution and physical energy which made the popular name for the Mersey built steamship to fit him like a perfect cap.

Lord Haldane traveled from England much more simply than did Cardinal Wolsey. Haldane was accompanied only by his sister and his private secretary, whereas Wolsey's retinue—apart from that of his royal master—consisted of twelve chaplains, fifty gentlemen, 238 servants and 150 horses. The channel crossing was done in the Harry Grace a Dieu, England's first two-decker, of 72 guns and a tonnage of about 1,000.

In 1622 one of the wonders to be seen at The Hague was a wagon or a ship, or a combination of both. A traveler of that time wrote: "This engine hath wheels and sails, will hold above twenty people, and goes with the wind, being drawn or mov'd by nothing else, and will run the wind being good, above fifteen miles an hour upon the even, hard sands."

The Penny Supreme.

(From The London Chronicle.)

The penny, whose supremacy is now threatened, has had a good long inning. For over six centuries it was practically the only English coin, for while the florin did not appear until 1343, the penny was introduced by Offa, King of Mercia, who took as a model a coin struck by the father of Charlemagne.

This penny of Offa's was a silver coin, and it was followed in 1357 by one of gold, and it was not until the time of George III that copper pence were struck, the present bronze not coming until Victoria had been over twenty years on the throne.

Cut the Name in Two.

(From The London Chronicle.)

Even the polyglot Swiss interpreter at the general postoffice admits that there are languages which would stump him. How would he have solved the problem once presented at the Hampstead Green postoffice, and recorded in Baines' "On the Track of the Mail Coach?" Two women wanted to send a money order to a foreign tradesman in Oxford street. "What Christian name?" inquired the clerk. "He is a Turk and has none." "We must have a Christian name," the clerk insisted. "But you can't. His bill merely says 'Kotzemolien.'" "Oh, very well," decided the clerk; "that will do. Cut his name in two and make the order payable to 'Kotz Molien.'" Solomon could not have done better.

DIOGENES

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Diogenes was the George Bernard Shaw of his time. He got his living by cussing humanity and making humanity like it.

Diogenes was born about 400 B. C. in Greece, and during his early life took up counterfeiting for a profession. He was caught and was banished from his state. This curdled his disposition and he became the champion grouch of the period. Like modern malefactors of great intelligence he decided that he was right and that the whole world was to be severely criticised for rebuking him. He accordingly moved to Athens, borrowed a tub and became a philosopher. He emitted his philosophy on the street corners like many of our modern advance thinkers and retarded workers, and he used the tub for advertising purposes. By means of living in it he became famous, and large numbers of leading citizens came to visit him and to ask him questions, which invariably got rude answers. When Alexander the Great visited him he asked what he might do to gratify him; whereupon Diogenes asked him to step out of the sun, his morning ague fit being about come on.

All this won Diogenes great fame, and he did his best to live up to the public expectations. He prowled about Athens by daylight with a lantern hunting for an honest man, and passed by the city officials without even hesitating. He produced a large number of sayings to prove that nobody was any better than he, and that it was dishonest to try to be honest and in general acted like the proprietor of a blind pig saloon yawping against a reform wave. He successfully lived for almost ninety years without using his tub for anything except a shelter and died hungry and happy, being famous.

Many modern thinkers have studied the system of Diogenes and have imitated it successfully. He was his own press agent and the first one on record. If he had taken a bath and been polite to humanity he would have lived obscurely and would also have had to work for a living. On the other hand, a great many disciples tried to imitate Diogenes, but received the cold indifferent shoulder of the populace and had to appeal to the poor master for relief. The moral is plain. It doesn't matter much what you do in order to live in history, but one rule must be rigidly carried out. Do it first.

"He passed by the city officials without even hesitating."

A Vanishing Race.

(From The Chcago Record-Herald.)

Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, says that there is a lack of power and vitality in the American people which the immigrants possess; that they have, for example, the power of reproducing their own kind while ten classes of Harvard graduates failed to reproduce themselves.

The generations that follow the immigrants Americanize, but the change in the racial stock of the country must be very great, if not very important. It is noticeable in the cities and in the country also. Forty years ago Chicago was a city of American stock, with the principal additions from Germany, Ireland and the Scandinavian countries. It has taken in many foreign nationalities since then, and the percentage of persons of remote American ancestry must have greatly decreased. There are country districts in which the American farming communities have disappeared to give way to people from north, central and southern Europe. In certain places one people will be predominant, but, taking the country as a whole, there is great variety, so that there is no solidarity whose influence is generally felt.

It is a fact also that the tendency toward small families is not confined to the highly educated classes. It is common among all classes of Americans who desert those employments that the immigrants take up.

THOUSANDS CROWD STATE FAIR GROUNDS

Hundreds of Traveling Men Are Expected to Observe Drummers' Day.

Macon, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—A vast multitude of people, variously estimated at 25,000 to 30,000, yesterday did honor to Georgia's greatest state fair by visiting its exhibits at Central City park and patronizing its various features of amusement and instruction.

The center of the attraction was the big Barnum & Bailey circus, which put on two performances, matinee and night, in the mile track at the fair grounds, and which was attended by 18,000 persons at the matinee performance. The excellent midway attractions, however, were in full blast throughout the day, and were patronized by thousands of people. At the same hour of the circus the various exhibitions, buildings and special features were packed with spectators.

Hundreds of families came yesterday prepared to spend the day, and the spacious lawns at the fair grounds were dotted here and there with families eating their lunch picnic fashion. Ideal weather prevailed during the day, excellent street car service was afforded and the fair management had extra forces of men at work on the grounds seeing after the comfort and convenience of the thousands of visitors.

As a holiday had been declared for the school children in many of the cities and counties of the state, thousands of school children yesterday visited and enjoyed the wonders of the big fair, particularly the circus.

The judges began today the work of judging the various exhibits at the fair, and hope to complete them within four days.

Drummers' Day Saturday.

As tomorrow is Travelers' day, hundreds of drummers from parts of Georgia and many visitors from other states will be in attendance. President Julius, H. Otto, of the Fair association, who is one of Georgia's best-known traveling men, knows what the traveling men like, and he has spared no pains in providing it for them.

Jesse W. Bates, president of the Traveling Men's Association of Georgia, will be right up among those in front tomorrow morning when the travelers parade the business streets of Macon. They will meet at 10 o'clock where the line will be formed. They will then march through the several down town streets before proceeding to the fair grounds. All the "knights of the grip," their families and friends are anticipating with delight a fine old-fashion Georgia barbecue to be served them at 1 o'clock in the half-mile track. W. K. Young, better known as "Bill" Young, and famous throughout the state for his barbecue, has charge of the big feast, and that fact guarantees that it will be first-class.

Alfalfa club members from many Georgia counties will be on hand to meet with Loring Brown, of Smyrna, president of the Alfalfa Growers' association, and plans will be made to have alfalfa clubs organized in every county in the state. This will be the first general meeting of the alfalfa growers in the state, and many new members will be enrolled in the movement to extend the alfalfa idea.

FOUR-COUNTY FAIR OPENS AT COMMERCE

Commerce, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—The Four-County fair comprising the counties of Jackson, Banks, Franklin and Madison, will open here next Monday.

The stock exhibit will be a special feature and the agricultural exhibits will be better than ever, for the reason that the crops are fine.

The J. E. B. Stuart chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Civic club of this city are taking active interest in the fair and their efforts will add much to its success.

Governor J. M. Slaton will attend the fair Monday. This will be the governor's first visit to Commerce, and will also be the first opportunity many of our people have had to see Georgia's chief executive.

DREDGE PASSES THRO' LOCK AT MIRAFLORES

Panama, October 24.—The pipe line suction dredge, No. 85, which has been working at the Pacific entrance of the Panama canal, successfully passed through the locks at Miraflores and Pedro Miguel today.

The vessel, in tow of the tub Miraflores, and accompanied by auxiliary craft, entered the lower lock at Miraflores at 9:04 o'clock this morning. It passed through Miraflores lake and the Pedro Miguel locks and entered the Culebra cut at 11:52.

Tomorrow the girder span of the railroad trestle at Paraiso will be lifted to permit the dredge to pass through on its way to the Cucuracha slide, where it will being excavating.

The passage of the dredge today constitutes the first complete operation of the Pacific locks of the canal.

DUVALL LOSES LIFE ON HUNTING TRIP

Mineral Bluff, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—W. J. Duvall, a prominent young man 26 years old of Almond, N. C., was accidentally shot and killed yesterday by a companion named Raper.

Duvall was operating a shuttle block mill on Wilscot, nine miles east of this place. Running out of material for work in the mill, the young man decided to go out rabbit hunting. His remains were sent to his home at Almond today.

NATIONAL COMMISSION TO CONTROL INDIANS

Urged at Mohonk Conference, and Ultimate Self-Government for Dependent Islanders.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., October 24.—Ultimate self-government of the Philippines and Porto Rico and control of Indian affairs by a permanent non-partisan national commission were recommended in the platform adopted tonight at the closing session of the Lake Mohonk Conference of Friends of Indians and Other Dependent Peoples. The conference declined to indorse the view of some members that the Philippines were ready for immediate independence, but agreed that the Porto Ricans, while preparing for "self-government under the American flag," should be granted full American citizenship.

Notwithstanding condemnation the democratic Philippine policy received during the convention, the platform dismissed that question as follows: "We venture to hope that the action of President Wilson in placing the upper house of the legislature (the Philippine commission) in control of the Filipinos will be found by its practical results to have been wise, and that an occasion for its revocation will not arise."

The conference recommended that no date be set for the withdrawal of our supervision over the Philippines and no decision be made as to the ultimate form of complete self-government until "through general education and familiarity with the principles of American liberty the people should be fitted to decide wisely for themselves."

The suggestion for a non-partisan Indian commission to hold office during long terms or good behavior is said to have the support of the secretary of the interior. Such a commission would have charge of property worth nearly a billion dollars.

Legislation was urged to protect the Indians of Oklahoma, many of whom have been made suddenly wealthy by the discovery on their lands of oil and coal. This would be brought about by restricting the sale of their holdings and forbidding them to lease their lands, a practice which has driven thousands of Indians into beggary. This recommendation applies only to the so-called "restricted" Indians.

Congress was asked to permit the distribution to all competent Indians of their tribal property and to close the door upon the horde of applicants who by claiming Indian blood are seeking a share in this distribution.

Protection was asked for the Navajos, of Arizona and Nevada, whose prosperity through sheep raising and blanket making has attracted covetous eyes toward their lands.

Regarding the Indians of New York the conference recommended that as soon as possible the reservations be abolished and the Indians admitted to full citizenship.

The conference urged a vigorous medical campaign by the government, especially against tuberculosis and trachoma among the Indians.

The conference tonight heard an address on Alaska by John G. Brady, Alaskan governor from 1897 to 1909, and a description of the work of the Carlisle Indian school by Brigadier General R. H. Pratt, U. S. A., retired, who organized the school.

BRIDE OF 12 HOURS DECLARES HUSBAND CRUEL AND INHUMAN

Rome, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—After twelve hours of married life, Mrs. Viola Evans Edwards, a pretty 14-year-old girl, left her husband, Charles Edwards, a Lindale business man, declaring him to be cruel and inhuman.

In Floyd city court today she successfully resisted habeas corpus proceedings sworn out by her husband in a vain effort to cause her people to relinquish possession of her.

The pair were married Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, and Mrs. Evans left her husband early the next morning and refuses to return to him. On the witness stand she asserted that she left him of her own free will, realizing that she had made a grave mistake. She declared that her love for the young man had changed to dislike and that she never wanted to see him again.

Judge John H. Reece refused to sanction the writ of habeas corpus and the girl bride is with her uncle, George Hardy. Her relatives assert that they will seek to have the marriage annulled on the ground that Mrs. Edwards is less than 14 years of age. Her husband declares she is 16, and her age was so given on the marriage license. The young man denies that he mistreated his youthful wife, and attributes her desertion to the influence of relatives. He has sworn out warrants against two of her cousins, Ella Melton and R. C. Melton, charging them with kidnaping.

The girl is handsome, mature for her years and of intelligent appearance. The husband is 26 years of age.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND GORDON COUNTY FAIR

Calhoun, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) Large crowds have been attending the ninth annual Gordon county fair, which i sin progress here this week.

Features of the week have been singing contests, veterans' reunion, field sports for county schools and many other events of interest. Mr. Loring Brown acted as stock and poultry judge, while Judge J. W. Maddox, of Rome, delivered the address to the veterans.

An interesting exhibit in the ladies' department is a handsome oil painting by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, executed over thirty years ago when Mrs. Wilson was Ellen Axon and was teaching art in the old Presbyterian college at Rome.

LOWNDES COUNTY MAN SHOOTS SELF IN HEAD

Valdosta, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) Byrn Hightower, Jr., a well-known farmer, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head this morning at his home, two miles west of Valdosta.

It is understood that he had been drinking heavily for some time and was in a depressed and nervous condition for the past week. He had threatened to take his life before and stated to members of his family this morning that he would not live through the day. After breakfast he secured a parlor rifle, and, going into the hall of his home, lay down on a lounge and fired a bullet into his brain. When his son and wife reached his side he was in a dying condition.

Mr. Hightower was 50 years old and a native of this county.

STEVENS MAY ENTER RACE AGAINST PRICE

Colonel O. B. Stevens, who was commissioner of agriculture for a number of years and a former railroad commissioner, is being urged by his friends to make a race against J. D. Price, the present commissioner of agriculture. Friends of Colonel Stevens state that numerous requests from all parts of the state have come to him to make the race.

Colonel Stevens is one of the best known men in public life in Georgia. He has served in the house, in the state senate, as commissioner of agriculture and as railroad commissioner during previous years. No doubt the probability of his candidacy will arouse considerable interest and a warm fight is predicted in this event in the primary next year.

INSURANCE MEN DISCUSS WAR ON "WHITE PLAGUE"

Reduction of Mortality by Treating Patients in Special Sanatoria Is Recommended.

Berlin, October 24.—Relations between insurance and the campaign against tuberculosis were discussed today by the International Tuberculosis congress. Reduction of mortality by treating patients in special sanatorial, improving of housing conditions and education of people to the danger of infection were topics of talk.

The German speakers included Dr. Kaufmann and Dr. Wilhelm Koch, presidents of different sections of the German imperial insurance office. They described amazing results of the establishment of sanatoria for consumptives among the compulsorily insured working classes not only in reducing mortality, but in rendering life easier for sufferers and their families and in curing many of those attacked.

Dr. Kaufmann declared that 92 per cent of patients in sanatoria in 1912 showed such improvement that permanent disability was not to be feared. Of the patients successfully treated in these institutions in 1907, 57 per cent were today still self-supporting.

Lee K. Frankel, of New York, and Frederick Ludwig Hoffmann, of Newark, sent papers describing the Swedish, Finnish and Dutch systems of insurance against tuberculosis as perhaps applicable to the United States. By this system the insurance companies advance to consumptive policyholders a portion of the face value of their policies to enable them to undergo treatment in sanatoria. The objection to this system is that companies specializing in such policies are likely to get bad cases and risks.

JOYNER MURDER CASE JURY IS DISCHARGED

Waycross, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) After a second session, during which the Joiner murder mystery was gone into as much as possible, Judge H. M. Wilson today discharged the jury with the case as much in the dark as before. Police deny that Joiner was employed in a crusade against blind tiger operators, thus exploding the theory that Joiner was killed to prevent his giving testimony in the prosecution of whisky cases in recorder's court.

Neither city nor county officers have found a single clue to work on, and beyond the certainty that two negroes killed Joiner nothing is further known of the murder.

"OPEN TOWN" ISSUE IN CORDELE ELECTION

Cordele, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) W. A. Thompson, J. M. Cox and P. S. Barber have been announced by their friends as candidates for aldermen in the approaching municipal primary on November 12. They will oppose D. L. Bulloch, W. D. Wilson and J. H. Lamb, the ticket put out by voters of the city who class themselves as the "conservative" element, the chief issue in the campaign being that of an "open town."

Since the two factions are very distinctively and strongly divided, a hotly waged contest is certain.

SING SING WITNESSES BEATEN UP IN PRISON

Ossining, N. Y., October 24.—Several Sing ing convicts who testified before a Westchester county grand jury in White Plains today in connection with the fire that destroyed the prison mat shop in July, were attacked and beaten when they returned tonight. A New Novel by Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD

The Coryston Family

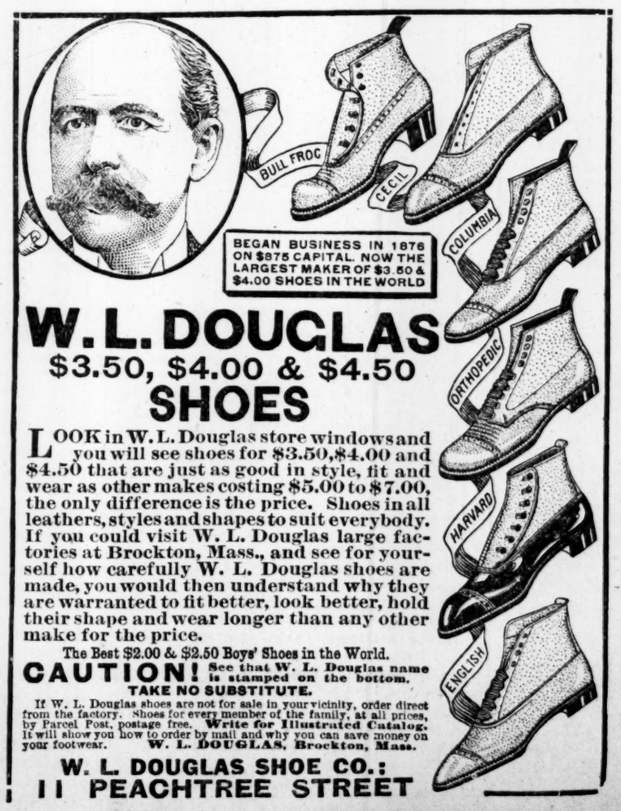

Admirers of this distinguished author's talent will be glad to know that she has returned to the style which made "The Testing of Diana Mallory" such a delight.

First of all, "The Coryston Family" is a love story, with a heroine who will rank as Mrs. Ward's most charming portrayal of young womanhood of today, then an absorbing representation of the dramatic struggle between the radical and the aristocratic elements of present English society. Lady Coryston, by means of her position, money, and character, is a power in the land, but fate overtakes her when her children defy her in both love and politics.

Harvest Ball a Happy Event At Piedmont Driving Club

To the members of the Piedmont Driving club the following notice has been sent out:

"As cotton needs picking, debutantes need harvesting, and as many of those who have been absent need the summer seed brushed away, every loyal member of the club is hereby commanded to don his or her harvest clothes and appear at the clubhouse, ready for toil, at 8 o'clock on the evening of October 31, 1913.

"Prior to beginning of work there will be served to the toilers in the main dining room at 8 p. m., a harvest repast that will fit all for heavy duty.

"Those not prepared for work will be served a suitable repast in the loggia, thereby avoiding the necessity for bringing 'glad rags' in contact with working clothes.

"Dancing begins at 10.

"Prizes will be offered for the best rigged female worker, the best rigged male worker, the best barn dancers, the best loader of hay, the most unique costume worn by a debutante.

"If interested, notify the club not later than otober 29, how many in your party."

The announcement made of the ball several days ago has set society to work on harvest costumes, and the occasion will give opportunity for many artistic creations.

Already reservations have been made at the club which indicate the popularity of the harvest ball.

RUMORS FOLLOW TRIP OF A., B. & A. OFFICIALS

Thought At Brunswick That Fundamental Charges In Road Are Contemplated.

Brunswick, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—Much significance is attached to the visit to Brunswick yesterday of all of the general officers of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, who were accompanied to the city by President Miller, of the New Orleans and Great Northern railroad, who is also receiver of the Buffalo & Susquehanna, and a prominent eastern railroad man, said to be one of the large stockholders of the A., B. & A. Included in the party besides Mr. Miller were Receiver and General Manager E. T. Lamb, R. K. Slaughter, auditor; B. L. Bugg, assistant general manager; H. W. Colson, general claim agent; J. L. Edwards, traffic manager, and W. W. Croton, general passenger agent.

The visit of these officials seems to be of an unusual nature, and the arrival, departure and personnel of the party was all treated as a secret by those in the party. The officials did not all come to Brunswick on the same train, General Manager Lamb and some of the officials arriving at noon and the others, headed by Assistant General Manager Bugg, coming in on a special several hours later, while Mr. Miller came south on the Seaboard and a special train was sent out from this city by the A., B. & A to connect with the train on which he was a passenger.

In the two private cars the entire party made a three-hour inspection of the A., B. & A. terminals here, then went to the plant of the Yaryan Naval Stores company and spent some time looking over that plant, which is a big feeder to the A., B. & A. Later the party left over a special train for other points along the line.

Rumors Afloat.

The secrecy of the visit has caused the circulation of a number of rumors. One report is that certain eastern holders of A., B. & A. bonds, including the Old Colony Trust company, of Boston, which is said to be directly responsible for the present trip, have fundamental change in view. Another well-founded report was to the effect that the present inspection trip is being made for the purpose of giving Mr. Miller an opportunity to see all of the property of the company in order that he, representing some unknown railroad or parties, will be in position to bid on the property when it is offered for sale at public outcry.

None of the officials would discuss the visit with newspaper men, they stating, as usual, that it was "merely an inspection trip of the road."

Racing Driver Killed.

THIS LADY OBEYED HUSBAND

In Matter Where Her Happiness Was at Stake, and is Mighty Glad She Did.

Sheldon, S. C.—In advices from this town, Mrs. J. B. Marvin writes as follows: "For more than three years, I suffered with womanly troubles, and none of the different treatments I underwent seemed to do me any good.

I also had pains in my left side, so bad, at times, I could hardly get up.

My husband told me to buy some Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I did. I started taking it, and soon began to feel better. I took only a few bottles, and now I am perfectly well, and able to do anything.

Cardui has done me a world of good. It certainly cured me of the trouble I had and I am getting along nicely.

I have recommended the remedy to other sufferers, and they have all been benefited by it.

I will always keep Cardui in my home for use in time of need."

Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy, containing no harmful mineral products. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. It has been relieving womanly troubles, for over half a century, during which time, it has proven of more than ordinary value as a tonic for weak women.

You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you, what it has done for thousands of others. It will help you. Begin to take Cardui today.

MODIFICATION URGED OF ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Mining Congress Thinks Present Legislation Has Worked to Harm of Employees.

Philadelphia, October 24.—The American Mining congress, at its final session here today, adopted resolutions urging upon congress and the state legislature the necessity of the modification of the anti-trust laws as applied to natural resources, "in order that they may be conserved and proper safeguards thrown around the employees."

The resolutions recite that federal reports show the coal industry of the country to be in a deplorable condition, returning but a small profit upon investments; that federal and state laws encouraging competition and preventing reasonable co-operation among those engaged in coal mining, result not only in preventing a fair return for the investment, but in most cases allow only the recovery of from 50 to 80 per cent of the buried heat, light and power, and that these laws limit the surrounding of the employees engaged in mining with all possible safeguards.

Other resolutions adopted urge "more liberal administration of land laws in Alaska," or enactment of new legislation calculated to interest private capital in the development of the great natural resources of that territory; the creation of a department of mines with its head a member of the president's cabinet, and an investigation by the department of justice of "scandals regarding securities listed on the New York stock exchange."

The appointment of a committee to investigate and recommend to the various states a uniform system of valuation of mining properties for the purpose of taxation also was recommended.

William B. Wilson, secretary of labor, addressed the morning session, and urged voluntary arbitration as a remedy for labor misunderstandings.

CLEVER THEFT GAME ENDED BY THE POLICE

County Officers Arrest Negro Man and Woman as Swindlers.

Officers Cheshire and Butler, of the county police, have succeeded in running to earth, a negro man and woman, who, they believe, have worked a clever swindle among white people in and about Atlanta for the past year.

The couple who gave their names Friday, as G. B. Hargrave and Bessie Brown, were both sentenced to twelve months in the stockade without the choice of fine in the criminal court of Atlanta.

Over sixty days ago, Hargrave, who is employed by Dr. M. W. Manahan, with offices in the Grand opera house, inserted an advertisement in the local papers stating that he had to leave the city and recommended "his cook as a willing worker and honest." The negro used Dr. Manahan's postoffice box number as an address.

Mrs. Pepin, of Highland avenue, answered the advertisement and later called up Hargrave, who represented himself as white man. Mrs. Pepin engaged the alleged "honest" servant.

The negro woman came to work for Mrs. Pepin on October 8. Ten days later, she left her place without notice. Mrs. Pepin found, the next day, that over $200 worth of fine clothing, silverware and cut-glass had disappeared when the woman left.

An investigation by the county police followed which led to the couple's arrest. The county authorities found goods valued at nearly a thousand dollars in the home of the negro. Much of the stuff belonged to persons other than Mrs. Pepin. It is believed the negro couple worke dseveral families in the same manner as they did the one in which they were detected.

CORNERED NEGRO FIGHTS OFFICER WITH CHICKEN

Cornered in a blind alley by Officers Turner and Duncan, a giant negro, who had just looted the chicken coop of Florence Green, a negress at Houston and Butler streets, took the offensive by throwing a fat three-pound chicken with all his might which hit Policeman Duncan in the head. Grabbing other chickens from a sack the negro beat at the officers frantically.

Soon his chickens gave out and terrific battle ensued. The black man grappled with the officers and began biting. Policeman Turner drew his pistol. The negro grabbed it and turned it on the officer. Just at this moment a well directed blow by Officer Duncan with his billy laid the negro out for the count. He was handcuffed and taken to police headquarters.

NATIONS OF S. AMERICA PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT

Says Only Desire of the United States Is to See Them Stable and Prosperous.

Rio de Janeiro, October 24.—Relations between North and South America are certain to become much closer in the future; the development of South America will be the most striking growth feature of the twentieth century as the development of North America was the most striking growth of the nineteenth; the only desire of the United States toward its neighbors of the western world is to see them stable, orderly and prosperous—such are the high lights of Theodore Roosevelt's first speech in South America, delivered today at the government university here.

Every American nation, Colonel Roosevelt said, had reason to congratulate itself upon the stability and prosperity of its sister nations. Any country, he continued, whose people conducted themselves in stable and orderly fashion could place among its assets the hearty and practical friendship of the United States. Chronic wrongdoing, however, might force ultimately in America, as elsewhere, intervention by some strong and stable civilized nation in the exercise of an international police power.

"Such a duty," asserted Colonel Roosevelt, "is thankless, irksome and unpleasant, whether it be performed by England, France or the United States; whether in Algiers, in Egypt or on the Isthmus of Panama. And therefore we all hail with delight the advent to real power of such nations as Brazil, the Argentine and Chile."

Colonel Roosevelt's address teemed with expression of goodwill for South America and admiration for the prowess of her leading nations in building the foundations for their careers. Brazil and other nations of the south, he said, stood on equal footing now with the United States among the council of nations. And one cardinal doctrine on which all nations of America agreed, he asserted, a doctrine of vital concern to the American family of powers, was the principle that the western world should not be treated as offering ground for fresh colonization of territorial aggrandizement by any Old World power.

ARGUES HIS OWN CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Preacher and Farmer Pitted Against Former Attorney General in Legal Battle.

It is not often that the supreme court listens to a man who is a farmer and preacher, but not a lawyer, plead his own case. Especially seldom is it when the layman has pitted against him a former attorney general of the state. This is what happened yesterday when the Rev. O. A. Moore, a former state senator from Heard county, represented the board of education of his county, of which he is a member, in a legal contest with the trustees of a local school district.

The trustees were represented by Hewlett Hall, who preceded Thomas S. Felder as attorney general of the state.

The county board claimed the right to exercise its discretion in the distribution of school funds received from the state, while the trustees held that it was obligatory on the county board to distribute the funds pro rata according to the school census.

Mr. Moore won his case in the court below. He made a fine legal argument in presenting his case Friday, which seems to have made a good impression on the court.

SHELDON WILL GIVE FINAL MUSICAL PROGRAM

The music at Trinity church Sunday morning will be especially interesting. This day marks the ninth anniversary of Charles A. Sheldon, Jr.'s connection with the choir. It is also the first anniversary of the church in the new edifice.

At the 11 o'clock service Mr. Sheldon will render the same program given at his first service in the old church, and, while but a boy at the time, it made a lasting impression on the music committee.

At the evening service Mr. Sheldon will give a "service of music," using only his own compositions. Mr. Sheldon's improvisations, not only in his services (at the Synagogue and Trinity church), but in the auditorium concerts on Sunday afternoons, have won him much praise and many admirers, and they predict for him a great future as a composer.

Following is the program:

Organ Prelude—"Reverie" .....
Voluntary—"Triune God, We Worship Thee" ..... Choir
Offertory, Organ—"Spring Thoughts"
Anthem—"Art Thou Weary? Art Thou Languid?" ..... Choir
(This number written with violin obligato.)
A Sermon, Organ—
"Some to the church repair,
Not for the doctrine, but the music there" (Pope Essay).

BUSINESS INSTABILITY BLAMED ON MUCKRAKERS

Confidence of Capital Shaken by Uncalled-For Agitation, Declares Judge Gary.

Chicago, October 24.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, in an address today at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, declared that the stability of business has been interfered with and the confidence of capital shaken by "unreasonable and uncalled-for agitation and attack." In spite of the country's wealth and resources, foreign capitalists wonder why we are not more continuously prosperous, he said.

"There are exceptional cases," declared Judge Gary, "in which mismanagement has caused distrust or dissatisfaction on the part of foreign and domestic capitalists; but this is not the principal reason for hesitancy at the present time on the part of these capitalists in making investments in our securities. They wonder why it is that with our great and growing wealth and resources and our superior advantages we are not more continuously prosperous; why we are not more stable in prices and in values and in general conditions, why there is ever any disposition on the part of anyone to interfere with the normal and natural progress in the development of our country and its industries.

Too Much Demagogy.

"There is too much demagogy, too much mud-slinging. The man out of office criticises the one in office and the one in office in turn seeks to advance his own interests regardless of the effect upon all others. In many public speeches and in magazine articles the author is influenced by motives of selfishness or cupidity. Appeals are made for the purpose of creating a feeling of dissatisfaction and unrest when this is unnecessary and unjustified. Fortunately this is partially offset by the conservative attitude of some of the leading journals; and the number is increasing.

"It is not uncommon in public discussion to treat success as an offence; to consider the possession of wealth, however honestly acquired, as wrong. Legislation calculated to create classes is urged persistently; also laws to impose unnecessary and unreasonable burdens; to forcibly take from one something which he has and is entitled to have, and turn it over to another; to prevent or to lessen the success of legitimate enterprise and endeavor.

"Capital, always timid, has been seriously affected by this unreasonable and uncalled-for agitation and attack. Indeed, it is becoming frightened. Confidence has been shaken. It is becoming almost impossible to secure, on fair terms, on good security and at a reasonable rate of interest, the necessary capital to equip or liberally maintain growing and successful properties, to say nothing of the additions and extensions which the interests of this great and growing country demand.

People Ready to Buy.

"Our great and growing population can use our products and it is willing and anxious to buy them. It is in need of railroads and ships to carry these products and it is willing to pay fair rates. Laborers are willing to work at a reasonable wage and employers are anxious to furnish work and to pay liberal compensation. Producers wish to satisfy demands for their products at fair prices and to that end they would make the necessary increase in capacity. And those who are able are quite ready to furnish the necessary capital, provided they can be certain of protection against loss or risk.

"In short, this country, though hesitating, is eager to do business. It is high time for all of us to wake up to a realization of the fact that we are in competition with other countries, that every means in their power are striving for supremacy; that it is not difficult for us by good management, to reach the greatest measure of success in competition with other nations of the world and yet that it is just as easy to fall if our vision is narrow or if we act without due regard to the results."

PRESENT GAME WARDENS KEEP THEIR JOBS, IF—

Brunswick, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—Charles L. Davis, of Warm Springs, who, on November 1, is to become state game commissioner, succeeding Jesse Mercer, spent yesterday in Brunswick, mingling with local sportsmen and looking into the situation here.

The attention of Mr. Davis was called to an article which appeared in all of the Georgia papers yesterday under an Atlanta date line to the effect that there was to be a general shake-up among the various county wardens when he took up the reins of office.

"I have made no announcement yet as to any of my plans," declared Mr. Davis. "I will say, however, that I may make a number of changes in the county wardens, but not a man who is now giving satisfaction to the people generally of his county will be removed from office by me.

"I am endeavoring to visit as many counties in the state as possible before I go into office, and in each one I am going to inquire into the qualifications of the present warden. If he is giving the people of his county satisfaction, is enforcing the new law, and if an efficient man, he will retain his office. The present commissioner has some unusually good wardens in the state, and these will be retained by me; he also probably has some bad ones, and these will be removed."

ROCKEFELLER'S BONDS TAKEN BY YOUNG BRIDE

New York, October 24.—Mrs. Evelyn P. Rutherford, a bride of one month, was arrested today on an indictment charging her with cashing of one hundred $20 coupons on Southern Pacific 4 per cent bonds belonging to John D. Rockefeller. It is alleged that when she gave up her position in the coupon department of the Southern Pacific railroad to be married to James A. Rutherford, she took the coupons and deposited them to her credit in a bank. She is said to have confessed to having spent $400 of the proceeds on her trousseau and to have returned the balance to the Southern Pacific company.

CONVICT-MADE BAGGING TO BE ADMITTED FREE

Millions of Dollars Worth of Imports Affected by Decision of the Treasury Department.

Washington, October 24.—Millions of dollars worth of imports may be affected by a decision of the treasury department today refusing to prohibit under the new tariff law the entry of bagging for cotton from Great Britain, alleged to have been manufactured in part by convict labor.

Assistant Secretary Hamlin denied the application of the American Manufacturing company for an order to prevent the entry of $300,000 worth of British bagging now in customs warehouses at New Orleans and Galveston and to bar all future importations from the same source.

Mr. Hamlin held that the only convict labor employed in connection with the cotton bagging was in the preparation of the waste material and that this work did not constitute a manufacturing process.

The yearly imports of bagging from this source amounts to nearly $1,000,000.

The department was advised that application would also be made for denial of the right of entry to certain linen wovelings, bags of various materials and other articles with an annual import value of many million dollars.

TWO ALLEGED BURGLARS ARE JAILED AT DAWSON

Dawson, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) Burglars attempted last night to rob the store of Dismuke & Davidson, of Graves, near Dawson, breaking down the wooden door and shivering with explosives the heavy lock to the iron door.

Ben Shead, a village blacksmith, discovered them, notified Ben Orr, watchman, of a ginnery and together they approached the burglars who opened fire which was returned. Fifteen shots in all were fired, none taking effect. The burglars then fled toward Dawson.

Early this morning Policeman Williamson, of Bronwood, saw two strange white men passing there walking. He informed Sheriff Hill who hurried there and the officers arrested these men near the line of Terrell and Lee counties and brought them to jail.

They are about twenty years old and give the names Will Evans and Hilliard Timmons and claim Rome as their home. Orr and Shead saw them in jail today and identified them as the men who committed last night's crime. The prisoners deny guilt, claiming to have spent the night in Dawson.

TO DECIDE LIABILITY FOR TITANIC DISASTER

New York, October 24.—The supreme court of the United States was called upon today to decide whether owners of the steamer Titanic must face suit for more than $16,000,000 for loss of life and property or whether liability shall be limited to $91,000, the passage money, plus the value of lifeboats recovered.

Judges Lacombe, Coxe, Ward and Noyes, sitting as the federal court of appeals, reached this decision today, submitting to the highest tribunal a number of questions involved in an appeal from the district court ruling by the Oceanic Steamship Navigation company, the Titanic's owners.

ALLEGED RAISED CHECK GETS O'PRIOR IN JAIL

Columbus, Ga., October 24.—(Special.) C. L. O'Prior, 22 years old, of Chattahoochee county, and Sam Sparks, a negro, are here in police jail tonight on a charge of raising a check for $60.82 to $600.82, and will be given a preliminary hearing before the recorder tomorrow.

O'Prior had sold a bale of cotton to the W. C. Bradley company for $60.82, and was given a check on the Third National bank for this amount. He took the check, raised it to the figures mentioned and sent Sparks to the bank to cash it. The bank Teller saw something was wrong, called officers and the negro and O'Prior were both arrested.

WAGON-TONGUE PIERCES BRAIN OF AUTO DRIVER

Ivan Starbuck Killed When He Drives Machine Into Wagon Filled With Negroes.

Macon, Ga., October 24.—Ivan Starbuck, 30 years old, farmer, merchant and owner of a garage at Perry, was instantly killed tonight when he drove his automobile head-on into a wagon occupied by three negroes, just outside the city limits of Macon. The wagon tongue pierced the radiator of the automobile and penetrated the skull of Starbuck so that he was killed in his seat.

J. O. Watson, 15 years old, a son of a deputy sheriff of Houston county, riding with Starbuck, was badly injured, as were the three negroes, all of whom were taken to the Macon hospital.

Starbuck and the Watson youth were on their way to the state fair to take in tonight's performance of a circus at the time of the accident. There is a sharp bend in the road at the point where the accident occured, and they did not see the mule team driven by the negroes until it was too late to stop their car.

Coroner Young found the automobile and wagon demolished. The mules have not yet been found, having been cut loose from the wagon by the crash.

A Great Novelist's Plea for the Emancipation of Women

HAGAR
By Mary Johnston

In "Hagar" Miss Johnston has written the book that her admirers have always wished for and, latterly, expected—a powerful story of the present day. She brings her heroine from secluded Virginia to the whirlpool of New York.

"Hagar" realizes the breadth, the narrowness, and finally the full proportion of a woman's life, passing through poverty and wealth to find her happiness.

A glowing argument for feminism, a stirring human drama, a piece of noble literature—in each of its three aspects "Hagar" marks an epoch in Miss Johnston's career as a thinker and a writer.

By Dick Jemison.

The stage is set and the actors, the football elevens of the Universities of Georgia and Virginia, await their cue, the referee's whistle to dash into action in the center of the field at Ponce de Leon park this afternoon.

The game will mark the first meeting between the two teams in fifteen years and as much rivalry exists between the two schools as there did at that time. No intenseness marked their rivalry, intenseness that could cause a breach in their relations.

The schools just seemed to drift apart, the mileage difference between the two schools prohibiting yearly competition, in those early days of football in the south, when the crowds were not as large as they are these days.

But arrangements were made last fall for the game that is to be played this afternoon and a resumption of athletic relations between the schools on a permanent basis seems to be assured.

Teams Are Here.

The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock. When Referee Wahoo tosses a coin in the air and Captain Carter, of Virginia, calls "heads" or "tails," the last little detail before the actual play will be consummated. All the other details have been carefully prepared.

The two elevens are here. The Virginia party, twenty-eight strong, arrived shortly before noon Friday and immediately hied to the Hotel Ansley, where they are making their headquarters during their stay in Atlanta.

The Georgia eleven arrived at 8 o'clock Friday night and immediately went to the Georgian Terrace, their headquarters during their sojourn in our midst.

The alumni of both institutions wanted to arrange so many entertainments for their honor that the coaches had to sit their foots down prior to the game and the enthusiastic supporters have to be content to wait until the fray is over.

The Virginia team put in a busy day Friday. They had luncheon shortly after their arrival at the Hotel Ansley. After a brief rest they went to the Piedmont Driving club, where they engaged in a long signal drill.

Last night the alumni of the University of Virginia entertained the team and its accompanying supporters at a dinner at the Piedmont Driving club. This dinner was served early and the Virginia players retired early to rest for the battle today.

Advance Sale Heavy.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Tumlin Bros.' store, and Mr. Tumlin reported last night an advance sale that exceeded even the expectations of the rival managers.

Judging from the number of seats that have been sold, the crowd will come close to testing the capacity of the big stands at Ponce de Leon park.

All classes of tickets can be purchased down town. It will not be necessary to wait until one gets to the park to purchase reserved seats, side line tickets or automobile parking space. These are all on sale down town.

The general admission will be $1. Box seats, side lines and other reserved seats will be 25 cents addtional. An additional charge of $1 will be made for each automobile that enters the field.

A special section of seats has been reserved for the alumni of the University of Virginia and all native Virginians living in Atlanta. This section will be roped off with bunting, pennant signs, etc., and no extra charge is necessary to enter this section. Native Virginians know each other. No other introduction is necessary.

A special section will also be reserved for the Georgia contingent. Quite a delegation of fans and students are coming over on the morning train today from Athens. These and the local alumni of the Red and Black will be located in a section marked similar to the Virginia section.

Virginia Favorite.

Virginia is the favorite in the betting. Few bets have been recorded and these at pretty good odds. Whether the strength of the two elevens warrant the bet or not we do not know, but we witnessed several 2 to 1 wagers with the Old Dominion eleven on the long end.

The marked advantage in weight of the Virginia eleven is the cause for these odds and in a measure justly so, but the weather conditions are going to have something to do with the outcome. But the weather forecast is for clear and cold weather.

Virginia will average 180 pounds to the man and the Georgia eleven will average 166 pounds, an advantage of 14 pounds to the man in favor of the visiting eleven.

The Virginia line, from tackle to tackle, will average 197 4-5 pounds to the man. The Georgia line, from tackle to tackle, will average 177 3-5 pounds to the man. The entire Virginia line will average 185 6-7 pounds to the man, and the entire Georgia line 168 4-7.

The Virginia backfield will average 170 1-2 pounds to the man and the Georgia backfield will average 161 1-2 pounds to the man.

Backfield Duel.

A side issue of the game itself will be the backfield duel between Buck Mayer, the University of Virginia star, and Bob McWhorter, who in himself is pretty much of a football team for the Red and Black.

The styles of the two halfbacks is said to be that dashing, spectacular, broken field running stunt that so delights the hearts of the football spectator and to see these two lads in action this afternoon is alone going to be worth the price of admission.

Powell and Landes, the rival fullbacks, are also said to be excellent line smashers, and the duel between these two is going to be only secondary to the duel between McWhorter and Mayer.

Hugh Conklin, an Atlanta boy, at left end for the Georgia eleven, and considered one of the best defensive ends in the south, is going to be compared with White, a Memphis boy with the University of Virginia, who is said to be equally as good.

Just what kind of tactics the two elevens will use in the game are unknown. Neither coach, naturally, is tipping off his hand and only the occasions that arise in the game can be used as a judge of what they will use.

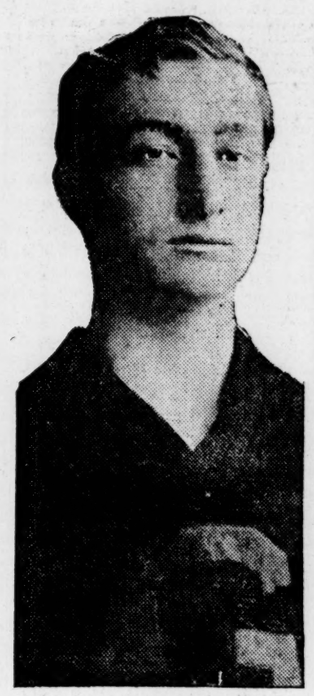

But it is a safe bet that Georgia, being outweighed as she is, will play an open game, with wide end runs and some forward passes mixed in. It is up to them to play this kind of a game if the published weight of the two teams are to be taken seriously.

Anyway you look at it—it's going to be some game.

Intercity Scrap Crops Out In Virginia-Georgia Game

WHITE (Virginia)

CONKLIN (Georgia)

There will be an intercity rivalry in the Georgia-Virginia game that will be as stubborn as the rivalry between the two schools. The rivalry between Memphis and Atlanta is always intense and the two teams have men on them who are natives of these cities, the rival left ends. Hugh Conklin, left end for Georgia, is an Atlanta boy, and White, left end for Virginia, is a Memphis boy. Both are considered the star ends of their teams. This should also be a pretty duel worth watching.

Jackets Play Gators Today; Last Easy Game of Season; Should Win by Good Score

Coach Heisman's Yellow Jackets play their last road game of the season today, and incidentally their last easy game of the schedule, when they line up against the University of Florida eleven at Jacksonville.

Even with Loeb and Patten out of the line-up, and some of the other players not in the tip-top condition that they might be in, the Jackets ought to win by at least three or four touchdowns.

Florida is apparently about the same strength as the Mercer team, allowing an improvement in the week of practice that they will be benefited by.

Two coaches, the team manager and eighteen players made the trip to Jacksonville. The Jackets will line up against the Gators as follows: Trawick, center; Means and Lang, guards; Nance and Rainey, tackles; Preas and Cushman, ends; Thomason, quarter; McDonald and Cook, halves, and Johnson, full. The subs taken were McCord, Hayes, Alexander, Lucas, Montague, Fielder and Smith.

MISSISSIPPI GAME WORRIES DONAHUE

Auburn Has Tough Game At Birmingham Today—Other Tough Games Ahead.

Auburn, Ala., October 24.—(Special.) The Auburn football squad is somewhat worried over the outcome of the game against Mississippi A. and M.

In fact, in none of the remaining games on the schedule will the Auburnites have a chance to breathe easy for a minute. Mississippi A. and M., L. S. U., Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Georgia are as strong a set to tackle on consecutive Saturdays as could be picked out in the S. I. A. A.

The Mississippi farmers from reports have a very heavy team averaging 185 pounds to the man. They probably won't outweigh Auburn any in the line, but will be very much heavier in the backfield.

Auburn's backfield too will be probably much faster. In Wells, their 200-pound fullback, they seem to have a strong line-plunger so that the Auburn line will receive its first real test.

While the backfield is in good shape the same cannot be said of the line. Pitts is down with fever and it's very doubtful whether he will be able to get in the game Saturday. Lomsell is again troubled by another crop of boils. They won't prevent his playing but they certainly are troublesome. Thigpen and Lockwood are nursing bad bruises as a result of the Clemson game; Thigpen is coming around all right but Lockwood has had his hurt over again so he is not in very good shape.

There has been two hard scrimmages this week mainly for the purpose of working Kearley in the backfield and Taylor at end. This combination will make Wynne available for one of the line positions where the material is somewhat short.

In view of the injuries a good-sized squad will be taken to Birmingham and will include the following players: Newell (captain), Arnold, Harris, Hart, Christopher, Sparkman, Prendergast, Wynne, Harston, Robinson, Harley, Taylor, Lomsell, Esslinger, Stud, Culpepper, Lockwood, Thigpen and possibly Pitts. Bidez has been called home on account of sickness so he will not be able to go. The first line-up will be picked from these.

Governor's Horse Guard Specials 18, Company H 37.

Company E 15, Company G 25.

Before a large crowd of enthused fans, the first basketball games of the season were played last night. It was the opening night of the National Guard Basketball league. Although the game had had but little advertising, a large crowd was present, and the "rooting" and cheering was prevalent throughout both games.

All four of the teams showed lack of practice and but little team work was exhibited. Both games, however, were very hard fought affairs, the losing team in each instance fighting until the last goal was thrown.

Captain Quillian, chairman of athletics of the Fifth regiment, and Lieutenant R. V. Anderson, the president of the league, both expressed themselves as being highly elated over the success of the organization of the league, and of the good spirit displayed on every side.

The next game will be played on Wednesday night of next week, and two games will be played next Friday night.

Slow But Furious.

Company H defeated the Governor's Horse Guard Specials in a most hotly contested game. The infantrymen led, 13 to 7, at the end of the first half, and the final score stood 37 to 18 in favor of the foot soldiers.

The defensive work of the Horse Guard team was excellent, but they were woefully weak at advancing the ball, the forwards having but little chance to take clear shots.

Company H proved to have a very fast team, and the pass work and goal shooting was good, though they were a bit lucky at the latter.

The line-up and score:

G. H. G. S.	Position.	Co. H.
O. Grice (12)	R. F.	Stokeley (1)
H. Graves (4)	L. F.	Alexander (8)
K Grice (2)	C.	Priest (10)

Bayer, Brogdon	L. G.	Brown

Foul goals: Shot by O. Grice 8, missed 3. Shot by H. Graves 0, missed 3. Shot by Stokeley 1, by Green 4, missed 7. Referee, J. Graves. Timekeepers, Lieutenant Ashford and Captain Quillian. Scorer, J. Govan.

Mauck Shines.

Hugh Mauck and Ed Jarvis, lately of company K, now of company G, were the whole show in the other contest. Company G won from company E after an interesting game, 25 to 15. Had Jarvis and Taylor passed properly, the score would have been much more one-sided. Many a chance to score was thrown away by long shots which were failures.

Company E put up a game fight, but poor goal shooting was the cause of their downfall. At passing and team work they excelled their heavier and more experienced opponents.

Line-up and score:

Taylor (7)	R. F.	A Freeman (5)

NEGRO MOTORCYCLISTS RACE ON THE 'DROME

Meet Postponed From Thursday Afternoon Will Be Run Off Today.

The motorcycle race meet for the colored people of Atlanta, which was scheduled to be run off Thursday afternoon, but which was postponed on account of the rain, will be run off this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Bill Jones and Loyd Brown will defend the honors of the local colored contingent against the invasion of Ben Griggs and Willie McCabe, of Chattanooga, and the Wilson brothers of New Orleans.

Bill Jones is out to win, just like he was at the local speedway some time ago. Bill believes that he has broken his hard-luck streak and that this afternoon he is going to show them some speed. Bill threatens to ride the white boards "if any of them other niggers try to keep me from winning."

The Chattanooga riders are confident that the prize money that has been hung up will be easy picking for them. They are after the first prize and will not be satisfied without it.

Anyway you look at it, there is going to be a rare afternoon of sport.

HOLLAND AND SMITH WILL BE RETURNED?

St. Louis Report Has It That the Crackers Will Get the Infielders Back Again.

If the reports from St. Louis are true, the Crackers will have the services of both Harry Holland and Wallop Smith next season. Smith and Holland went to Clark Griffith at the close of this year's season in trades, but it is said Griffith will turn them back to Billy Smith for a little more season-ing.

It is also reported that Rippy Williams, a young catcher of good repute, is also going to be sent here by Griffith.

JUNIORS SHOWING CLASS AT EMORY

Teams.	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Juniors	2	2	0	1.000
Seniors	2	1	1	.500
Sophomores	2	1	1	.500
Freshmen	2	0	2	.000

The first game of the afternoon was won by the Juniors over the Freshmen, by the score of 12 to 0, and the second went to the Seniors way over the Sophomores, by the totals of 19 and 0. The afternoon was deal for the gridiron sport, with a stiffening breeze across Weber field.

The Freshmen showed up to better advantage than in their first game when they held the Sophs to a 19 to 0 score, and although the Juniors were given the edge in the pre-season speculation they could not come up to the Sophs' score. Christian played a grand defensive game for the Freshmen, while the Juniors' players were consistent with no stars.

The Seniors continued their grand showing of the season in the second game, with Saxon again as the shining individual. He made the three Senior touchdowns. Ramble was a steady ground gainer for the Sophs.

The Sophomore gains were made by end runs and flukes, while the Seniors always ploughed the lines on straight bucks.

TECH SCRUBS WIN FROM BOYS' HIGH

By Hal Reynolds.

The Tech scrubs had little difficulty in defeating the Boys' High eleven, of the local prep league, yesterday afternoon on Grant field, downing them by a score of 42 to 7.

The game was somewhat retarded by the condition of the field, as the mud gave the players on both teams a great amount of trouble in getting their plays started and keeping their feet when they did.

High school's first and only score came in the first quarter, after a few minutes of play, on a fumble. Cain picked up the ball and racing 90 yards for a touchdown.

The scrubs were a little slow in getting started, but once started High school was never able to stop them. They began soon after they were scored upon and from then on until the end of the game they were kept busy making touchdowns.

For the scrubs the work of Gardner, Stevenson, Senter and Crane stood out above that of their teammates. Gardner did good work on the defensive, and kicked all the goals after touchdowns.

For the High school I. Knox was easily the star. Had it not been for this boy the score would have been much larger than it was, as only his fierce tackling prevented the scrubs from making several more touchdowns. He also was the only man who could gain with regularity, tearing off many runs through the line and around the ends for practicaly all of his team's gains.

Gann also did some pretty work at dumping interference and nailing the runner for a loss.

Howard 13, Alabama Preds 6.

Anniston, Ala., October 24.—(Special.)—The Alabama Presbyterian college was defeated by Howard here this afternoon by a score of 13 to 6 in a hard fought football game. The local team was outweighed and badly crippled, Leach being out of the game and Crosby suffering fro ma game ankle. Boykin, Flowers, Archibald and Stevenson were the mainstays of the local eleven, Fullington, Robinson and Duke starring for the visitors. Walker Reynolds and Rabbit Harris, of Auburn, officiated.

TWO SPLENDID GAMES ON EASTERN GRIDS

Pennsylvania - Carlisle and Pennsylvania-Carlisle and the Princeton-Dartmouth Games

Of all the football games scheduled for eastern gridirons today, two stand out most prominently, the Pennsylvania-Carlisle game at Philadelphia and the Princeton-Dartmouth game at Princeton.

The Princeton-Dartmouth game is easily the classiest game that has been set this season and all the dope obtainable points to a contest that cannot be figured out in advance. The Hanover lads seem to have as good a chance to win as the Tigers.

On the other hand, the Pennsylvania-Carlisle game, unlike these games of former years, looks like a victory for the Penn crowd. Coach Brooke has welded together a strong team for the Red and Blue this year and they are going to be in the running all season for first honors.

There are numerous other games, but Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Army, Navy and Brown have only practice romps, so to speak.

RIVERSIDE PLAYS GORDON AT PONCE

Prep Teams Engage in Hot Gridiron Battle This Morning as Preliminary to Afternoon Game.

The Gordon Institute and the Riverside Military academy football teams, contestants for the prep school football honors of the state, will battle at Ponce de Leon this morning in their annual battle.

The game will start promptly at 10 o'clock. Both elevens arrived in the city last night and are ready for the game.

The Cadets of the two schools will arrive here this morning to cheer their teams on to victory, and the crowd that will be at the game promises to be a big one.

DONALD FRASER EASY FOR G. M. A. ELEVEN

By Carl Taylor.

By piling up the large score of 52 to 0, Georgia Military academy had little difficulty in downing the Donald Fraser eleven on the latter's field yesterday.

The playing of Donald Fraser was stronger near the end. The line, which is their admitted weak point, bolstered. Phillips and Van Valkenburg were the life of this team, and their playing was sensational from start to finish. Lewis, Malloy, Green and Story also played good ball.

Georgia Military academy, under the direction of Coach Henderson, has turned out a good team and will give the others a hard fight for the supremacy in this league. Their forward passing is especially accurate, Smith making four to Walker, which this speedy little end carried across the goal line for touchdowns.

The playing of Smith, Porter, Walker and Medlin was good.

Murphy Honored.

Norwich, Conn., October 24.—In honor of Captain Danny Murphy, of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics, a rousing parade was given by hundrdes of citizens of his home town tonight. The local lodge of Elks, of which he is a member, gave Murphy a life membership card. A big reception with speechmaking concluded the celebration.

White Sox and Giants.

Blue Rapids, Kan., October 24.—The Chicago White Sox defeated the New York Giants today 8 to 5. Wiltse was pounded by the Chicago players for four home runs.

CITIZENS OF BREMEN AFTER COUNTY SITE

Bremen, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)) The people of Bremen have started a movement to have the county site of Haralson county moved from Buchanan to Bremen. At a public meeting of citizens a fund of $20,000 for the erection of a new courthouse and jail was pledged, and a free site for the county buildings offered.

Petitions are being circulated for an election on the question of moving the county seat.

MRS. PEEL DROPS DEAD AT HOME NEAR ROME

Rome, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. Della Peel, of this county, dropped dead from heart failure yesterday and was buried today from Friendship church, near Berwin.

She was 58 years of age, and is survived by four children, one of whom is Mrs. Walter Davis, of Atlanta. A sister, Mrs. C. B. Langham, also resides in Atlanta.

VANDY LINE-UP CHANGED FOR GAME

McGugin Makes Eleventh Hour Shift—Weather Conditions All That Can Likely Mar the Contest.

Nashville, Tenn., October 24.—With a last practice this afternoon in a drizzling rain on Dudley Field, both the Vanderbilt and Michigan teams are waiting for the whistle tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock on Dudley Field. Vanderbilt has yet to win from their western rivals, but many believe that they have the best chance in their history tomorrow.

Michigan took possession of Dudley Field at 2 o'clock today, but could do little work on account of its muddy condition, spending a greater part of the afternoon in the gymnasium. Vanderbilt practiced later in the day, also spending most of the time indoors. Both teams appear to be in good condition, and there is nothing to mar the prospects with the exception of the weather. The rain stopped tonight and the wind veered to the north, thereby giving hope that the field will dry off and the weather be colder.

McGugin announced today that Askew, weighing 203 pounds, and Huffman, 185, would replace Gutnam and Lowe at the guard positions, thereby adding bulk to his line. He has little fear of Michigan gaining consistently around the ends. Betting is two to one in favor of Michigan, with plenty of money changing hands.

This is the sixth meeting between the two teams, and as the Wolverines have been returned the victors on the previous occasions, the local eleven is seeking revenge in this battle. Here are the scores of former years:

1911—Vanderbilt, 8; Michigan, 9.
1908—Vanderbilt, 6; Michigan, 24.
1907—Vanderbilt, 0; Michigan, 8.
1906—Vanderbilt, 4; Michigan, 10.
1905—Vanderbilt, 0; Michigan, 18.

The lineups of both teams was given out by both coaches tonight, as follews:

VANDERBILT.	Position.	MICHIGAN.
Chester	Left End	Torbett.
Morgan	Center	Paterson.
Askew	Right Guard	Cochran.
T. Brown	Right Tackle	Pontius.
E. Brown	Left End	Lyons.
Boensch	Quarterback	Hughitt.
McQueen	Right Half	Galt.

MERCER-CITADEL GAME SHOULD BE CLOSE ONE

Teams Appear To Be Evenly Matched in Speed, Weight and Experience.

Macon, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—What promises to be one of the most closely contested football games ever played on a local gridiron is the game between Mercer and Citadel here at the fair grounds tomorrow.

All the dope, comparative scores, statistics on the teams, etc., show that for evenness the teams are about as well matched as one would care to see two teams, and the game is certain to be a rip-snorter.

Mercer, of course, carries the edge, being favored in the local sentiment, but even the home rooters admit that their margin is very slight.

TO TEST NOTIFICATION ORDINANCE OF ROME

Rome, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—The constitutionality of Rome's famous "notification ordinance" will be tested by the Southern Express company, which today secured a temporary restraining order preventing the officers of the city of Rome from enforcing the ordinance, which requires all common carriers to notify the chief of police of liquor shipments exceeding one gallon, at least six hours before delivery to the consignee.

The argument on the temporary order will be had before Judge Moses Wright, of Floyd superior court, on November 3.

SEWANEE MUST FIGHT TO DOWN LONGHORNS

Tigers Battle University of Texas at Fair Grounds at Dallas Today.

Dallas, Texas, October 24.—(Special.) The Sewanee Tigers arrived here this afternoon and are resting after their long trip from the mountain to this city.

Tomorrow afternoon at the state fair grounds they lock horns with the University of Texas eleven. These teams met two years ago, and the Sewanee Tigers were returned the victors by a one-point margin. The Texas eleven is out for revenge.

Texas will be a little heavier, but the Tigers will be the speedier, and a brilliant battle is promised.

9.24 Inches of Rain.

Wilmington, N. C., October 24.—All records of rainfall for the month of October in the twenty-eight years' history of the local weather bureau were broken today with a precipitation of 1.32 inches bringing the total for the month to 9.24 inches.

S. E. Gross Dead.

Battle Creek, Mich., October 24.—Samuel Eberly Gross, of Chicago, a wealthy real estate operator and author, who sued Edmund Rostand, the French dramatist, for plagiarism, died here today. In 1902 the United States court sustained the contention of Mr. Gross that Rostand's play, "Cyrano de Bergerac," had been plagarized from Gross' comedy, "The Merchant Prince of Cornville."

WILSON OPPOSES SINGLE BANK PLAN

President Reiterates That the Owen-Glass Bill Is "Admirably Suited to the Needs of the Country.

Washington, October 24.—Whether there shall be one federal reserve bank with branches throughout the United States or several banks, as provided for in the administration bill, promises to be the chief issue of the final currency reform fight in the senate committee that is to open up Monday. The hearings of the committee will conclude tomorrow night, and the committee members will begin Monday the arduous task of attempting to agree upon a revision of the Glass bill that will prove acceptable to President Wilson and the house.

The president made it known in emphatic terms today that he was opposed to the central bank plan, as suggested yesterday by Frank A. Vanderlip, of the National City bank, of New York, and as indorsed informally by many members of the senate committe. He reiterated through Secretary Tumulty that the Glass-Owen oill, with its system of twelve regional reserve banks related only through the functions of one federal reserve board sitting at Washington, "was admirably suited" to the needs of the country.

While members of the senate committee, including several democrats, were drawing out witnesses in further support of the single bank idea, President Wilson talked at length with other senators, outlining his desire that the Glass bill be left unchanged in this particular.

Favor Single Bank.

It was apparent tonight that the course of several members of the committee probably will be determined finally by the attitude taken by President Wilson and other party leaders as to the expediency of the single bank plan. Senators O'Gorman, Hitchcock and Reed, democrats, all favor the idea of a single federal reserve bank, as opposed to many separate ones, but it is believed that their advocacy of the plan may be abandoned in committee if the democratic leaders insist that such a measure could not be passed through the house.

Senator Reed visited the white house early today with Secretary McAdoo and urged the president to withhold judgment on the single bank idea until its details had been more fully worked out by the senate committee. Later Senator Kern, democratic leader, and Senator Stone conferred with the president for some time.

The president made it clear to the senate leaders that he did not believe the senate committee should attempt to disturb the foundation of the bill that passed the house to the extent that it would have to be remodeled to provide for a single bank. Senator Stone on leaving the white house expressed his personal opposition to the single bank idea.

While the plan concretely before the committee is that outlined yesterday by Mr. Vanderlip, many suggestions of the same kind have come from committee members, and requests have been made by the committee of several witnesses who recently appeared to outline their views on the subject. Questions directed today to H. Parker Willis, of New York, an expert, who helped frame the original Glass bill, indicated the extent to which Senators O'Gorman, Hitchcock, Bristow, Weeks and others approved of the scheme of one central reserve bank under complete federal control, instead of several scattered ones.

Views of White House.

Secretary Tumulty expressed the white house views in this statement:

"When inquiries were made at the white house as to what the president's attitude was toward the proposals made by Mr. Vanderlip, of the National City bank, to the currency committee of the senate, it was stated with the expected emphasis that, of course, the president would not recede in any respect from the position he had already so clearly taken and which the whole country understands.

"He has warmly and unqualifiedly indorsed all the main features of the Glass-Owen bill. He regards the plan provided for in that bill as excellently suited to the existing conditions of the business of the country and in every essential particular sound and calculated to render the business men of the country a great and immediate service, and he believes that the early enactment of the bil into law is expected and demanded by the most thoughtful business interests. The evidences which have reached him of the support of the country are unmistakable and overwhelming."

Mr. Willis was the chief witness before the senate committee during the afternoon. He did not indorse the single bank idea, but suggested many other changes that might be made to perfect the bill.

Public ownership of the stock of regional reserve banks was conceded to be possible by Mr. Willis, who was questioned on this point by Senator O'Gorman. He expressed the belief, however, that ownership of the stock by the member banks would stimulate their interest in the currency reform plan.

Mr. Willis recommended that the house bill be changed to provide:

That national banks could not open savings departments; that state banks could not enter the new currency system unless they conformed to the strict requirements made of national banks; that the federal reserve board contain no cabinet officer but the secretary of the treasury, and that the commission that organizes the new banking system shall have the power to determine the number of regional reserve banks to be established.

BIG DAY IS PLANNED AT THE TABERNACLE

"Home-Coming" Will Be Celebrated by Feast of Good Fellowship.

Tomorrow is scheduled to be a great and historic day at the Baptist Tabernacle.

It is well known that in the recent past, after Dr. Len G. Broughton, the former pastor, went to London, a difference of policy brought about a clash amongst the membership of this church, which, for a time, paralyzed the progress of the work. Dr. Lincoln McConnell, who has recently accepted the pastorate of this church, has rallied about him the erstwhile discordant elements and the breach has been fully healed and everybody is now harmonious and happy.

Dr. McConnell has a personality that is irresistible. He is humanitarian to the core and is in full sympathy and accord with the lines of work for which the Tabernacle has stood in years gone by. The membership, without exception, have gladly rallied to his support, its members unite in saying there was never a brighter day in the history of the Tabernacle than that upon which it is now entering.

Since Dr. McConnell came earnest effort has been made to gather back those who left the fold. The city was divided into twenty-five districts, and every church member within the district and made responsible for visiting every chuch member within the district. This work has just now been completed. The membership has been definitely located, so far as is possible, and next Sunday is to be "Home-coming Day" for the entire membership, and a great jubilee occasion in which all the friends of the Tabernacle throughout the city are invited and earnestly requested to take part.

An interesting program has been prepared for the entire day, beginning with Sunday school in the morning and continuing through the regular preaching service morning and evening. All the friends of the Tabernacle in Atlanta are expected to enjoy the occasion and be convinced that the Tabernacle is not dead, nor even sleeping, but is very much alive and "on the job," and actually doing the special and peculiar work which it has been foremost for so many years.

FAIR WEATHER IS ON TAP FOR TODAY, SAYS WEATHER FORECASTER

The official weather prediction for today is "fair." There will be high winds, just enough to put a tang into the air, but the sky will be cloudless and the sun shining, if the signs at the weather forecaster's office mean anything.

The afternoon will be marked by a slow but sure upward climb of the mercury so that by nightfall it is predicted that Atlanta will again be in the midst of pleasant days and "blanket" nights.

The storm area which has been shrouding the entire south with cold winds and much rain for the past three days is now rapidly moving up the Atlantic coast and is due to take an oceanward sweep by tomorrow, losing itself over the vast ocean and probably causing ocean traffic much concern.

From all parts of Georgia the reports came in yesterday that the elements were abating and that if further rain was not expected.

The temperature Friday stood at an average 62 degrees during the day. This was bettered somewhat in the late afternoon hours, but dropped as the sun sank. It is predicted that the mercury will show at least 70 degrees during this afternoon.

All of which brings much joy to the hearts of the football fans, as well as to the man whose wife advised nim that "it was yet too early to put on his heavy ones."

CONTRACT ABROGATED BY CITY, NOT COUNTY

That the city board of education and not the county school authorities took the initiative in abrogating the contract existing between the city and county, whereby the city agreed to teach some of the white school children of the county in the Highland school in return for the instruction of a number of the city's negro children in the county schools, is the statement made by County School Superintendent E. C. Merry in a communication received Friday by The Constitution.

The letter, which is self-explanatory, follows:

"Editor Constitution: I will appreciate it if you will correct an erroneous impression made by your report in this morning's paper of the action of the city board of education in abrogating its contract with the county board of education, concerning the teaching of some of our children in Highland school in exchange for the colored city children at South Atlanta. The statement was made that 'the contract was abrogated at the request of the county board.' This is not according to facts. We did not request the abrogation of the contract; but, on the contrary, offered to stand by the contract in every detail. We demanded that the city stand by its contract and teach our children in the Highland school only, instead of sending them elsewhere, and because the city could not do so, they abrogated the contract and not us. Personally I feel that it was best to dissolve the agreement and the two boards of education have no ill-feeling over the matter, but it was not done at our request. Very truly yours, E. C. MERRY,

"County School Superintendent.

AD CLUB MEMBERS PRAISE WARDEN MOYER

In Personal Letter Confidence in His Integrity Is Expressed.

In a personal letter to Warden William Moyer, of the federal prison, the Ad Men's club of Atlanta has assured the warden of its confidence and esteem for him and defends him against the charges of inhumane treatment of prisoners recently made against him by former prisoners, Julian Hawthorne and Dr. Morton, upon their release.

The letter, which is written for the entire club and signed personally by a large number of members, speaks of Warden Moyer in the warmest terms of praise and goes into detail as to the splendid conditions found at the prison when the ad men recently visited the institution.

The letter is as follows:

"Mr. William H. Moyer, Warden, United States Penitentiary, Atlanta, Ga. Dear Sir: We have noticed in the Atlanta daily papers some alleged criticisms or you as warden and of the working of the prison and of the food you serve the prisoners, most of this criticism coming from two aged men recently released.

"This letter is merely to assure you of our confidence and esteem and to state that on the recent visit of the Ad Men's club to the federad prison, which occurred before these charges were made against you and the prison, about thirty-five representative Atlanta business men who are members of the Ad Men's club of Atlanta were shown by you, Deputy Warden Hawke and several guards over the entire prison and all of us were allowed a close inspection of the cells, work shops, dining hall, kitchens, bake shops, refrigerators, power plant, tailor shop, stone working plants, bathrooms and laundry, shoe shops, tuberculosis camps, print shop and even the solitary cells, and we, one and all, noted the cleanliness, the splendid system and the apparent cheerfulness of the prisoners in their work.

"We were allowed to sample the bread in the bake shop and it was as fine as we ever ate. There was a big supply of pies, meats, cheese, sausage, etc., on hand with which to feed the prisoners, and we venture to say that no hotel in Atlanta has a more sanitary kitchen and store rooms and that the quality of the food could not be better.

"As regards the solitary cells, of course, we could see these were meant for punishment. However, there was nothing inhumane about them; they were well lighted and ventilated and we were informed that a prisoner confined in solitary for breaking the prison rules was furnished plenty of bread and water daily.

"Some criticism seems to have been made by one of the prisoners recently released concerning his being confined to the print shop. Most of us know something about printing and the conditions under which printed matter is prepared and turned out. We wish to say that the print shop at the United States prison was personally inspected by us and we found it conveniently arranged, well lighted and ventilated and adjoining was an editorial room which was all that could be required. We should think that a prisoner would deem himself fortunate in being assigned for duty in the print shop.

"We wish to especially commend the arrangement for the bathing of prisoners, as we notice that separate baths are maintained for prisoners suffering with infectious and incurable diseases, and that the soiled clothes of such prisoners are placed in a separate tank and are laundried separately. The arrangement of the tuberculosis camp is ideal, the tents are comfortable and sanitary and we noted that a glass-inclosed house is ready for tuberculosis patients in bad weather.

"As we spent an entire afternoon inspecting your prison just a few days before these charges were made against you, we deem it a privilege to write you these few words of commendation, and this letter is signed by a committee from the Ad Men's club of Atlanta, who were numbered among your guests at the prison on the occasion referred to.

"Yours respectfully,

"AD MEN'S CLUB OF ATLANTA.

Street Car Conductor Charged With Seduction; His Wife Sticks to Him

City Detectives Cowan and Osborn yesterday arrested Mert Jones, a street car conductor employed by the Georgia Railway and Power company, on a warrant issued by Sheriff Skinner, of Eastland, Texas, charging seduction.

Jones came to Atlanta six years ago and, in 1911, married Miss Ella Thompson, of Center street. Since his marriage Jones has lived on Sister street in a snug little cottage.

When arrested Jones at once denied the charge and declared that he would return to Eastland, Texas, without a requisition and face his accusers. He told the officers that he had not been in Eastland during the past six years and was sure that there was some mistake.

Jones later made bond and then consulted his attorneys, Colquitt & Conyers. He then returned to police headquarters with his wife, a pretty little woman, who clung closely to his arm. Mrs. Jones branded the charges against her husband as false.

After a consultation with Chief of Police Beavers, Jones declared to a reporter for The Constitution that he would not return to Eastland without a requisition.

Chief eBavers wired Sheriff Skinner, of Eastland, that his man had balked. The sheriff wired back to hold Jones for him until he secured the papers.

STANDARD OIL NAMED AS VICTIM OF TRUST

Washington, October 24.—The name of the Standard Oil company as a victim of an alleged trust figured today in the "lumber dealers'" case before the supreme court. Retail lumber dealers in the east are seeking to have the court set aside an injunction issued against them by the New York federal court to prevent them from circulating among themselves a list of wholesalers who sell direct to consumers.

The government contends that the circulation of these lists restrains competition, as wholesalers are loath to incur the wrath of retailers by selling to consumers. The name of the Standard Oil company, the first of the big combines ordered dissolved by the supreme court, heads the list furnished the court of consumers who have been buying direct from wholesales.

Negro Postmaster Removed.

Fifteen years ago South Atlanta, that territory about the Clark university, had a postoffice of its own, with L. J. Price, a negro, as postmaster. In 1904 the South Atlanta postal territory was made subsidiary to the Atlanta postoffice. Price was left in control of the substation. Yesterday Postmaster Rolling Jones issued an order removing the South Atlanta substation from its old location, the intersection of the Jonesboro and McDonough roads, the very heart of the negro district, to the McDonough and Milton crossing. Along with his order to remove the home of the postal service in that section Postmaster Jones issue an order naming W. L. Jones, Jr., to succeed Price at the substation.

Practical Negro Training Theme of Mass Meeting

The people of Atlanta who realize that practical training is one of the solutions to the negro problem will be interested in the mass meeting to be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at St. Paul's Methodist church, in behalf of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute. Richard D. Stinson, president of the institution, reports that it is badly crippled by an indebtedness of $800 to $900. Unless this is lifted, the usefulness of the school will be seriously embarrassed.

A. Montgomery, of Atlanta, one of the city's best known business men, will preside over the meeting. Addresses will be made by H. G. Hastings, the Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, the Rev. Dr. McConnell, the Rev. Dr. W. R. Hendrix and others. An attractive musical pram has been arranged.

The Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute was established with the purpose of educating young negroes for those practical pursuits that offer such opportunities for the negro in the south. They are taught farming, gardening and given lessons in domestic science and service and cooking. It is instruction of this nature upon which the ninety and nine among the negroes must bepend for realizing their greatest usefulness to themselves and to the economic program of the south.

ROBBED OF HIS FORTUNE BY ST. LOUIS "BOSSES"

Carl Boehme Tells This Story at the Office of Associated Charities.

Bringing sensational charges against the city of St. Louis, in which he claimed that a certain "ring of political bosses" had defrauded him of a fortune he inherited from his brother, Carl Boehme apocared at the office of the Associated Charities Friday morning and poured out a pitiful story of persecution and inhuman treatment. Although Boehme tells a straightforward story, repeated many times without the slightest variation, it is thought that he is mentally unbalanced.

According to his story, seven years ago he inherited $300,000 from his brother, who died in Germany. He states that he was employed at the time by the city of St. Louis. As soon as he received hi sinheritance, he charges, a gang of political leaders had him adjudged insane at a mock hearing, and had him placed in the state asylum for insane and dangerous criminals, and a certain ringleader of the gang, whose name he refuses to divulge, was placed in charge of his estate.

Three days ago, he states, he escaped from the asylum, and after enduring untold hardships from cold and hunger on the journey from St. Louis, he arrived here early Friday morning, and staggered into the office of the Associated Charities.

Although little credence is placed in his story, Superintendent Joe Logan has communicated with the St. Louis authorities in the hope of instigating a thorough investigation of the man's past. In the meantime he has been placed in the Christian Helpers' League home, where he will be cared for until word is received from St. Louis.

Turner in Bankruptcy.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed with Deputy Clerk Henley, of the federal court yesterday, by William G. Turner, of Atlanta, a merchant doing business at 160 West Tenth street. In his papers the petitioner shows liabilities amounting to $2,957.59, of which $698 appear as secured, while $2,259.59 are unsecured, according to the petitioner's declaration. The assets, made up of stock in trade, personal property and property exempt by bankruptcy laws, aggregate $2,000. S. K. Dick was named by Judge Newman, of the federal court, as receiver under a $900 bond.

COMMISSION REVOKES PERMIT OF WIFE NO. 2

At Brothers' Request, Second Wife of Alleged Bigamist Denied Right to Visit Him.

At the request of her four brothers, all respected citizens of Dublin, the prison commission yesterday revoked the permit which was given to Mrs. Freeman Hill Keen, the alleged bigamous wife of C. P. Nix, to visit him in the Laurens county convict camp. Nix is at present serving a twelve months sentence for carrying concealed weapons.

In explanation of their request for a revocation of the permit Mrs. Keen's brothers call attention to the fact that Nix is under indictment for bigamy and for desertion of his first wife and children at Cornelia, Ga. He is said to have deserted his first wife November 19, 1912 and to have married Mrs. Keen two days later.

In the letter to the prison commission the brothers say:

"We wish to state that we are no enemies of Mr. Nix. We are only sorry that he deserted his family and illegally married our sister. We wish very much that all his steps had been legal and that he could have remained a faithful husband to our sister.

"We respectfully ask the commission to revoke this permit because she and her children have visited the camp three Sundays in succession. We consider it a disgrace to her and her family connection. We further state that we have only the tenderest love and sympathy for her. Although we know her to be in the wrong, she is our only sister. She and her little children are to be pitied. We will only be too glad to assist her and stick to her if she will only let Nix alone. Nix alone is responsible for present conditions, all of which we very much regret."

The brothers who sign the letter are Dr. C. C. Jordan, J. F. Jordan, J. J. Jordan and M. W. Jordan.

COTTON DECLINED UNDER REALIZING

Prospects for Better Weather in South and Selling for Reaction Main Factors in the Decline—Spot Quiet.

New York, October 24.—Today's cotton market was unsettled by realizing, while there also appeared to be some selling for a reduction, which was probably inspired by prospects for better weather in the south, the rapidity and extent of the recent advance, reports of further financial troubles in Bombay and nervousness over the Mexican situation. Most of the private crop advices from the south continued of a very bullish character, but it was expected that the census report tomorrow morning would show a full ginning up to October 18, and there was evidently quite a general disposition to take profits on long cotton. Prices eased off and the close was barely steady at a net decline of 13 to 20 points, with December selling as low as 13.78 or about 27 points below the high records of yesterday.

Private cables attributed a decline in Liverpool to increased offerings and a slack demand, and houses with Liverpool connections were considerable sellers here during the early trading, while in addition to local and southern realizing there was evidently some pressure from bearish or reactionary sources. First prices here were 5 to 7 points lower and the market soon showed net losses of from 14 to 18 points on active positions.

After the close of Liverpool, selling became a little less active and prices rallied some 10 or 12 points from the lowest on reports that southern mills had been heavy buyers on spot cotton yesterday and a renewal of bull support.

WHEAT OFFERED ON EVERY BULGE

Bears Had Control of Chicago Market—Wheat Closed 1-4 to 3-8 Cent Off—Corn and Oats Also Declined.

Chicago, October 24.—Best prospects ever shown for winter wheat in the United States put the bulls at a disadvantage today. Closing prices were weak 1-4@3-8 to 3-8 under last night. Corn showed a net loss of 3-4 to 5-8 and oats a drop of 1-4 to 3-8. In provisions the outcome ranged from 21-2 decline to 71-2 advance.

Whenever wheat prices bulged a little today, the volume of selling increased and pulled the market down. This was especially true right after the opening and just before the close. Aggressiveness on the part of bears came chiefly from reports concerning the winter crop. Expert opinion was that, taking the country as a whole, such favorable conditions never had before prevailed. Seeding was reported as practically completed and increased acreage in nearly all sections was confirmed. Buyers derived courage mainly from the fact that seaboard clearances for the week were the largest in ten years. There were also reports that Duluth was doing an active business in Manitoba and durum for export. Bears, however, maintained their front and were reinforced at the last by statements from country points northwest that spring wheat receipts were likely to be more liberal.

Corn was freely sold on account of the fine weather. Southern Illinois sent reports of damage from rain, but this was more than offset by seaboard advices of Argentine cargoes offered on a cheaper basis than quotations at Chicago.

Oats followed corn. The principal feature of the day's trading was heavy commission house selling on a mid-session advance.

Offerings of provisions were quite liberal early, but were well taken and the market developed a firm tone. The temporary weakness at the outset was due to a decline in the price of live hogs.

Gibert & Clay.

New York, October 24.—Although weather conditions in the central and eastern belt are unfavorable to the crop, prices here today were slightly lower owing to liquidation and a limited buying power. While offerings were not large, they seemed to overhang the market and depress prices so soon as demand stopped crop reports from all states lay stress on the harm done to the grade of the crop by the present wet weather.

COTTON THE PAST WEEK; REVIEW OF THE MARKET

New York, October 24.—It has been an extremely active and excited week in the cotton market, owing to the appearance of abnormally early killing frosts over a greater part of the belt. Prices have made new high records for the season, with December contracts selling a shade over the 14-cent mark, or more than $16 per bale above the low level of last August. Realizing became very heavy around these figures, checking the advance, and while private crop advices from the south have remained of a very bullish average, sentiment toward the end of the week was somewhat more reactionary or unsettled. Killing frosts have been reported at scattering points in the south earlier than the present date during some previous seasons, but local cotton people claim that killing temperatures have been more general this year than during any recent year before the end of October, and local bulls base prediction of still much higher prices on renewed confidence in small estimates of the yield.

Such private crop estimates as have been published during the week have ranged from about 13,000,000 to 14,300,000 bales, but most of these figures are said to have been compiled from data collected before the cold weather set in, and the fact that low temperatures followed wet weather and were succeeded by renewed rains, has probably added to the fear of a short and low-grade yield.

On the other hand, full ginning figures are expected from the census bureau tomorrow morning, private estimates pointing to about 7,000,000 bales, against 6,873,000 last year, and 7,758,000 two years ago.

As not more than 47 per cent of the crop has been ginned on the average to October 18, bearishly disposed traders contend that a ginning of 7,000,000 should modify some of the smaller estimates of the crop, while the bulls claim that the ginning to October 18, this year, will represent an unusually large percentage of the total yield, and probably equal that of 1909, when approximately 55 per cent was reported up to the date covered by the present figures. Meanwhile, reports from abroad continue to indicate increased foreign crops, while the unsettled Mexican situation and financial troubles in Bombay are considered unfavorable features as bearing upon probable requirements.

STOCKS GAINED LATE IN THE DAY

But During Greater Part of Session Several of Leading Stocks Were Weak—New Haven's New Low Record.

New York, October 24.—Fluctuations of stocks today were irregular. Opening at an advance, the market fell below yesterday's close and during most of the day's session made little progress in either direction. The close came with an upward swing in progress and the leaders ended the day with material gains.

Professional traders shifted frequently and evidently were perplexed at the immediate course of the market. Weakness of various investment issues, among which Pennsylvania was most prominent, served to hamper operations for the long account. The only dfeinite movement of the day was that of the last hour, when the market showed signs of independent strength

There was little connection between the various developments of the day and movements of stocks. Traders accounted for the early advance by referring to the plan for a central government bank, presented by Frank A. Vanderlip, which was reported to have found favor with some members of the senate committee. President Wilson's uncompromising opposition to this plan nullified the effect of this factor. The new record for foreign trade shown in the September statement had a sustaining influence. Dispatches from Mexico were regarded as disquieting.

New Haven reached a new low record at 81⅛, as did the convertible sixes at 104¾. Confirmation of the reports that the Pennsylvania was contemplating a huge bond issue was followed by renewed depression of the stock at 107¾, although it did not reach the year's low point. Later it rallied strongly. Rock Island stocks and bonds were buoyant, rising 1¼ to 3½ points.

Bonds were irregular with support for some recently weak issues. Total sales, par value, $1,860,000. United States two advanced ½; Panama twos ¼ and aPnama threes coupon ⅛ on call.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, October 24.—(Special.)—Liverpool was barely steady and closed decidedly lower on the idea that the ginners' report will be bearish tomorrow and that the political situation in England and Mexico will bring about a further decline. There were free sellers in this market on these ideas bringing about a decline of 20 points from yesterday in face of probably the worst weather the cotton belt could have had after the freeze and frost earlier in the week.

Rain was just what the ydid not want. What they needed was a long, dry period to offset, to some extent, the frost.

The trade here are still bearish, looking for the ginners' report to be a very heavy one.

Liverpool is due to come unchanged to 1 point up.

GIRLS FLEE WHEN FLAMES THREATEN

$10,000 Damage Done to Old Miller Stables Building and Several Other Structures Were in Danger.

Fire, originating on the first floor center of the three-story structure formerly occupied by the Miller stables at Marietta and Bartow streets late yesterday afternoon did $10,000 damage and for 30 minutes threatened adjacent buildings, forcing fifty young girls employed by the Atlanta Envelope company next door to flee to safety. Six hose companies responded to the alarm and it was only the united efforts of an army of firemen which brought the flames under control.

Apparently the fire had been in progress some time when discovered by a passer-by. Before the fire engines could arrive the flames had gained terrific headway and for a while the buildings in proximity to the Capital City Chair company and the Capital City Chair company seemed doomed.

Smoke from the burning building just previous to the arrival of the fire department had pentrated the Atlanta Envelope factory. Employees shouted the alarm frantically to their fellow workers. Pandemodium reigned for several minutes until the cooler heads started the others toward the stairs in order. There was no crowding and all reached the ground without mishap.

Chief Cummings declared last night that he, as yet, had been unable to determine the origin of the fire. The structure is owned by the Miller Real Estate and Investment company and carried $18,000 insurance.

RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE MODIFIED BY BURLESON

Washington, October 24.—Postmaster General Burleson today ordered a modification of existing regulations governing the transportation of mails, providing that no train shall be held at a connecting point beyond its stated time of departure longer than is necessary to transfer first-class mail.

"I took this matter up," Mr. Burleson said, "at a conference with Guy Adams, mail director of the Frisco lines. Investigation disclosed the fact that through trains in all parts of the country frequently were delayed beyond their regular time of departure by the regulation that all of the mail from another train, even though the latter be late, must be transferred to it. The operation of this regulation often caused serious delays in the departure of trains, to the inconvenience and loss of many persons.

"Hereafter if a train is late only the first-class mail will be transferred from it to its connection, so that there may be no unreasonable delay in train departures."

WOULD FIX LIMIT TO SIZE OF NATIONAL HOUSE

Washington, October 24.—Representative Cordelle Hull, of Tennessee, author of the income tax provision of the tariff law, today began a vigorous campaign for an amendment to the constitution limiting the membership of the national house of representatives to 450 members. The present membership is 435. With the rapidly increasing number of members the fact that the house is overcrowded and top-heavy has become more and more apparent. Mr. Hull would limit further increase and by so doing give the lower branch of congress an opportunity to readjust itself.

ROBBERS GET BIG LOOT FROM OHIO POSTOFFICE

Chicago Junction, Ohio, October 24. Robbers early today blew open the safe of the postoffice at Attica, Ohio, seven miles west of here, and escaped with loot estimated at $15,000.

The loot the robbers obtained represented not only the money and stamps of the office, but large sums of cash belonging to the Seneca County Fair association and other organizations of which Postmaster W. F. Uhle was secretary.

It was believed the burglars escaped in this direction, and the sheriff of Seneca county is hunting them in this vicinity.

GOVERNOR LEADS WORK ON KENTUCKY ROADS

Lexington, Ky., October 24.—Thousands of Kentuckians of both sexes turned out between rains today in working clothes and took part in the state's "good roads day." Governor McCreary, 77 years old, led a squad of workers near Frankfort.

Candidates At Tifton.

Tifton, Ga., October 24.—(Special.)—Tifton is evidently regarded as fighting ground by the congressional candidates. Judge Covington spoke to the farmers here ten days ago, and made a return engagement to speak to the business men last night. Judge Park spent Saturday here, but had no speaking engagement, and Colonel Luke will address the voters of the county at the superior courtroom tonight.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, October 24.—It was another dull session on the cotton exchange today, with fluctuations of no great importance and traders on both sides waiting for tomorrow's report on ginning. The consensus of opinion today was that the figures would be bearish and selling orders were in evidence early and late, on a moderate scale in consequence. Smaller longs liquidated in considerable numbers. The market stood up fairly well under the offerings, chiefly because o fthe growth of small crop ideas and the claim by the bulls that the pending ginners' figures would represent 50 per cent of the crop. Bearish claims were for ginning figures of about 7,000,000 bales, which would mean a total crop, according to the bulls, of only 14,000,000 bales, not including linters.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 to 6 points on poor cables. More rain overnight in the cotton belt gave the market a steady tone around the opening. The decline was gradually increased, with many partial recoveries until, late in the day, the trading months were 13 to 15 points down. The close was steady at a net loss for the day of 8 to 11 points.

The comparatively good close was partly due to the fact that mill takings for the week were larger than expected, Hester putting them at 402,000 bales, against 381,000 this week last year and 460,000 this week two years ago.

TRADE REVIEWED BY COMMERCIAL AGENCIES

New York, October 24.—Dun's Review will say tomorrow that the business situation continues fairly satisfactory, although evidences of a reactionary tendency are manifest in certain branches of trade. October weather has stimulated both retail and wholesale distribution of seasonable merchandise in numerous sections, but unusually low temperatures at the south have led to reports of further damage to cotton.

Conditions in iron and steel still reflect curtailment of operations with additions to idle forces an there is a less optimistic sentiment. Reductions in prices are more frequent, yet railroad demands are becoming more of a feature, and consumers are uring deliveries.

Much interest is being shown in the question of importations, but thus far nothing of especial significance has occurred in that connection. A better tone is apparent i nthe copper market. Continued favorable advices are recesived from leading dry goods houses.

Failures this week numbered 340 in the United States, against 255 last year and 31 in Canada, compared with 29.

London Stock Market.

London, October 24.—The stock market was less nervous over the Mexican situation and the closing was generally firmer.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the afternoon. New York bidding caused a general improvement in the late trading and the market closed steady.

John F. Black & Co.

New York, October 24.—There was not a good tone to the market today. It looks very much as if there has been too much bullish enthusiasm. Not that cotton is not worth the price, but that the marekt has become overbought for the time being. The technical position is not good and many well-posted men believe that there must be a break before there can be another advance. The close today was barely steady at a decline of 13 to 20 points.

Liverpool is due to come 1 up to 2 down.

Wool.

Boston, October 24.—Conditions in the Boston wool trade have changed but little during the past week. Territory wools have moved with moderate freedom with prices showing no improvement. Quotations include:

Missouri fleeces, quarter, three-eighths blood, 22@23. Kentucky and similar half and three-eighths blood unwashed, 23@24.

Scoured basis: Texas fine, 12 months, 50@52; fine, six to eight months, 45@47; fine, fall, 42@45.

Dry Goods.

New York, October 24.—Foreign ribbons have been advanced 10 per cent on plains and 30 per cent on fancies. Cotton goods and yarn markets continued firm today; foreign wools were bought more freely.

New York, October 24.—Flour steady.

MANY Atlanta products would find a readier market if manufacturers would realize what their non-resident competitors already know, THAT SALESMANSHIP IS AN EXACT SCIENCE.

Ten years' experience has convinced me that there is a tremendous need in Atlanta for a man who understands the exact connection between the advertising campaign and the individual order.

I would like to interview one who realizes the importance of this service, and who needs such a man.

We're Ready to Fit a Thousand Big & Little Girls With COATS

Coats! Coats!! Coats!!! Packed on tables like cordwood; crowded thick as hops on the racks. But though all the coats in the kingdom seem to have foregathered here, there is no commonplace sameness. The coats were assembled with rare discrimination and taste. Save where the same style is in a range of sizes, there are scarcely two coats alike. Three of the best juvenile coat specialists in the country contributed to the assortment. Moreover, keeping in mind that children grow quickly, we've had many high-priced coats copied—retaining the smart lines and styles, but using less expensive materials.

In all, the assortment is the most comprehensive we have ever assembled. Coats include rich luxurious zibelines; handsome plushes; brocaded velvets; curly, kinky boucles and chinchillas; the furry-looking astrakhans; broadcloths, kerseys, coverts and all sorts of woolens; swagger novelties, and others and others. A coat for any girl from 2 to 17 years at any price you wish to pay, from $4.95 to $25.

JURY LOANED EARS TO RAVINGS OF MOB

the middle ages, which are appropriately called the dark ages, the then called Christians, with few exceptions, hated the Jews most unreasonably and ferociously. In order to injure and, if possible, to exterminate them, any means were considered justifiable, and hence the 'ritual murder' charge became a regular institution in many of the European countries.

"It was enough for anyone to say that he had seen a Jew murder a Christian child, when Jewish blood would flow like water in any European city. Some years ago an imperial investigation was undertaken in Russia, and it was unanimously reported that this charge against the Jews was without the slightest foundation in fact, and that as a nation the Jews abhorred the shedding of blood, and that a Jewish murderer was the rarest exception. In spite of it, these false accusations are used from time to time, and the 'pogroms,' which are nothing more than mob murders of the Jews, are usually started in ritual murder accusations, the ignorant Russian priests frequently inciting the ignorant populace.

"A resolution adopted on the 15th instant by the house of deputies of the Episcopal church, consisting of lay and clerical delegates, now in triennial session in the city of New York, condemned the attitude of Russia in charging the Jews with such groundless crime, and called upon the church there to stop its persecution of the Jews. I am very friendly to the Episcopal church, the greatest Christian mission to the Jews is carried on by that church in England, and its efforts have been crowned with marvelous success. Among the Christian Jews the direct result of the great mission of that church are men of great distinction who have done honor to the church and to the countries in which they have lived. Yet truth compels me to say that if the Episcopal church did not directly encourage it, it at least unconsciously, perhaps, has given excuse to the ignorant in their prejudice toward the Jews. In the collect for Good Friday in every Episcopal church in the land the Jews are classed with the infidels, Turks and heretics, and prayer is offered for the conversion of that motly crowd, the Jews being among them. No intelligent Jew takes the matter seriously; neither does any intelligent Christian. On the other hand, where there are some on both sides that are not intelligent, it certainly cannot advance cordial feelings between them. It is true that this general convention proposes to amend the prayer so it shall read 'for ancient Jews' instead of "for all Jews," but I do not see how this change will help. A gentleman said to me the other day: "Ever since the Jews crucified Christ it is difficult to get justice for the Jew." He may have overstated the matter, but it is true that the ignorant prejudice from which the Jew suffers is due not to the fact that he himself is unworthy, but largely to the other fact that nearly twenty centuries ago some Jews had a hand in Christ's death.

"I am glad that in this blessed America these prejudices are gradually dying out, and I am looking to this country to teach all countries that it is criminal to harbor prejudice, and that the twentieth century is not called upon nor will it undertake to carry out a program that was prepared in the days of the inquisition. It were better not to pray at all than to mix narrow-mindedness, ignorance and utterances that were dictated by an age that has been repudiated by all who love God and humanity.

"JULIUS M'GATH.

"Oxford, Ga."

Relentless Effort to Convict.

"And this communication from Professor McGath accounts better than anything for the relentless effort made to convict Leo Frank.

"Was it ever before brought to your minds that the only conclusive witness against the man was an accessory to the crime, and was the lowest, most debased criminal in Atlanta's court record? Also the only man who testified to merversion?

"Time, however, rights everything. It is the world's greatest teller of truth. In the end, time and truth prevail. It takes time for truth, and truth forever follows time. Time rectifies all and everything—and everybody.

"Men grow weak in time of excitement. Impulsiveness causes all of us to lose a certain amount of strength. We became absurd, cowardly, ridiculous. Such was the condition in the trial of Frank. His conviction was a case of fanaticism that would have excelled the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. It was all due to temper and excitement and prejudice.

"Everything was lost on the jury, facts, argument, logic, soundness and sense. It was like casting pearls before swine. They were huddled together like a frightened herd of rabbits, afraid to move, afraid to do right, afraid to administer justice.

How Horrible is Prejudice.

"This case will do more than anything to show the entire world just how horrible is race prejudice. It will have a national bearing, and will convince the world of the ignorance and savagery of prejudicial feeling. The whole universe will learn a lesson. God meant it so. We are now molding a universal feeling—righting a universal wrong.

"The jury believed this criminal negro before they would believe the intellectual Frank, logic, wisdom and the most powerful alibi ever presented. It was outrageous. It not only reflects on the intellect of the jury, but upon the people of our southland.

"Outside of Conley there is no evidence whatever on which to convict. If the negro's vile story had not played its part in the trial I do not doubt that your honor would have discharged the jury and stopped the trial for lack of evidence. Take an ordinary case, for instance. Would you have hesitated an instant? No! Certainly not. You nor any other justice.

"Why, the inflammatory speech of Hugh Dorsey would have killed the case. Have we taken leave of our senses? Have we broken all rules of civilization, all rules of God our Maker and Keeper? Frank is doomed to death, doomed on evidence that would not have convicted a Jew of the darkest ages, when men were stoned and hanged by their toes to die.

"It is peculiar, but true—also sad—that modern people love to believe black and dirty things. It is an inheritance, it seems, that comes with the furious trend of modern life. They did it in this case—believed the blackest, filthiest lies ever told. There doesn't live a wolf, or bear, or snake, so utterly devoid of conscience and knowledge of right and justice as this monstrous negro Conley, and yet, the men put absolute faith and credence in his stinking lie.

Will You Believe Vile Tale?

"Are you going to believe the tale of this vile skunk? Are you? It's up to you—finally. From the very beginning, the whole situation was strained. People were willing to grasp at anything, to strain at anything. Everywhere you could hear: 'Sure, that damned Jew did it. Why go further for the murderer?'

"Nobody wanted to believe that anybody but the 'Damned Jew did it.' Everybody wanted to believe that he did it. And this sentiment aptly showed the fact that the hardest thing to do on earth is to argue against prejudice. It is hardest for these reasons: First, because fair-mindedness is required; second, because courage is required.

"You may find one of these traits in a man, but it is seldom you find both. The jury might have had one or the other, but I doubt it it had both. And, both are required to fight such a venomous evil as prejudice.

"When all this persecution centered on Frank, every conceivable kind of lie sprang up against him. And, the truth of the matter was that most of them came from volunteers. The sea of prejudice threatened to wash him completely into oblivion. And, Conley's lies composed more than half of that sea that finally did the washing. Wasn't it shameful?

"Yet, some poor, deluded souls say: 'Why didn't you break him down. He was telling the truth, or you'd have broken him.' God help such people. Why, after this negro had been on the stand for two days or longer, he never mentioned the whereabouts of the dead girl's purse until prompted by Dorsey.

"They say he stayed on the stand and withstood every attack. Certainly he did. So would have a parrot. You can take one of those birds and teach it to say, 'I want a cracker,' and you can't break it. It's impossible. You have to knock him down. The jury was hoodwinked, that's all.

Plastered Over With Lies.

"Conley was so plastered over with lies and contradictions that it was monstrous to put faith in one iota of what he said. He had his little wretched tale all canned and stocked in his system, and he poured it out to the jury as though megaphoning it. He might have said: 'Polly wants a cracker,' just as a bird that is taught such sayings will echo whenever prompted.

"He is willing to believe and assert anything that will save his neck from the gibbet of popular opinion.

"Lanford and his cohorts wouldn't allow Jim Conley to confess. Every time the negro bordered on a confession of guilt the detectives shifted him off to accusations of Frank.

"The whole trial has never been equaled in the world of justice. It was nothing but an effort to try Frank by prejudice for every conceivable crime in the catalogue of misdeeds. It was the unfairest on record, the most miserable. Why, one instance to prove it is the injection by Dorsey of the perversion evidence, which was done merely to prejudice the jury and inflame the men who already were frightened to their wit's end.

"If Leo Frank is hanged, I'd rather be dead and rotting in my grave than in Hugh Dorsey's place. His conscience will drive him crazy, distracted, and to God only knows what end. And it will be no less than his deserts. There never was a charge against Frank until the trial, never a blemish. And they grew from the mire and filth with prejudice as their roots."

At this point, the keeper of the library, in which the hearing was being held, notified the judge that it was closing time. Mr. Arnold's speech was discontinued until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Friday Morning Session.

For three hours Friday morning the monotonous disputes between Dorsey and Rosser and Arnold over the 115 counts, based on allegation of fact, were made continuous. When the noon hour was reached the end of the motion certification was completed so far as either side would concede at that time, and the court then stood ready to proceed with other matters in the case. The conclusion of the motion [illegible] marked the end of a two-day dispute between the attorneys engaged on both sides of the case, which, since its inception, had proven acrimonious and even ill-tempered at times.

When Friday's session opened Judge Roan, who had been unusually patient with both sides, urged the attorneys for more haste in their work. His request met with instant favor, and the session was marked by less friction and more accomplished results than were the sessions of Wednesday and Thursday.

"I wish you gentlemen would cease scrapping," admonished the court, with a smile, when the session opened. These little points are not worth all this argument," Judge Roan added.

Still fighting each step stubbornly, the attorneys followed the court's wishes, and by noon the defense had cleared away all of its affidavits charging bias against certain jurors who had been on the Frank jury.

During the morning session Dorsey and Arnold disputed for the better part of an hour over the testimony of Detective Black. One ground of the motion recited that Black testified that Frank had employed counsel when he arrived at police barracks the Monday morning after the murder. Dorsey disputed this flatly and the record was consulted, with the result that the wording of the motion was changed to allege that Black testified Frank "had counsel" at that time instead of "had employed counsel."

Points Cleared Up.

Several points that were left in dispute Thursday were quickly cleared up when Attorney Arnold was sworn and stated that to the best of his belief that the allegations of fact contained in the defense motion were true and in the defense motion that when the record did not bear out the filed motion he would consent to Attorney Arnold being sworn and testifying about these points.

The court stenographers who made short hand notes of the Frank trial were sworn during the morning session and declared that they had taken a correct record of the entire case. This was done on account of the fact that the defense declared that several objections they had made on certain motions were not recorded in the transcript of the case.

At noon the discussion of the motion was ended and the defense at once began the reading of its affidavits.

Jurors Defend Henslee.

A number of Frank jurors came to the defense of their accused fellow-juryman, A. H. Henslee, during the hearing Friday, when affidavits from them were submitted by Solicitor Dorsey, attesting to Henslee's attitude toward the prisoner when the first ballots were cast for a verdict.

Henslee was the only juror to oppose conviction, the jurors swore. With tears in his eyes, he is said to have told the eleven other men that a man's life was not to be handled carelessly, and that it should be weighed and sifted before sending a human to the gallows.

It required several votes and an hour or so to bring Henslee to his verdict of guilty, it was attested. Each of the jurors testified to his good character and to their readiness to personally appear in his behalf. There were also a number of affidavits from prominent men both in Atlanta and other Georgia cities who spoke highly of the accused man's character.

The character of Marcellus Johenning, another juror under fire, was also upheld by a large number of affidavits from business men all over the state. On the other hand, the solicitor produced affidavits attacking the character and veracity of a number of affiants whose affidavits assailing Henslee and Johenning were produced by the defense.

Letters Attack Frank.

Colonel Arnold created surprise at the afternoon session when he declared to Judge Roan that one of his best proofs of extreme racial prejudice that was prevalent during the trial was the mass of letters he had received from annonymous persons, all of which were threatening.

"And not one of them," he declared, "failed to contain the expression: 'That damned Jew!'"

Affidavits from every deputy and court attache engaged at the courthouse during the trial were introduced by the solicitor. Each attested to the fact that during no time did the jury hear the demonstrations from the crowd, excepting when they occurred in the courtroom before the gaze and hearing of the judge and attorneys for both sides, and on the day of the verdict after the decision had been rendered.

Among those who swore to this were Plennie Miner, R. B. Deavors, J. C. Lewis, clerk of court; Drew Liddell and other court deputies. The jurors who swore to affidavits defending Henslee and Johenning were Jurors Higdon, Smith, Winburn, Townsend, Bosshart, Osborne, Jeffries and Metcalf.

MITCHELL AGAIN HELD ON WARREN WARRANT

B. F. Mitchell, a salesman of Kirkwood, arrested here about two months ago, charged with cheating and swindling a number of large lumber concerns in Warren county, on a warrant issued in a justice of the peace court in that county, was again taken into custody last night by Officer G. C. Fain on a bench warrant.

According to the police, Mitchell for a long time worked a smooth game. It is stated that he had an office and represented himself to be a lumber dealer with a large lumber yard. He then secured carloads of lumber from many of the large lumber concerns on credit and then sold the lumber, appropriating the proceeds of the sale.

Model Who Tried to Die Befriended by Stanlaws, Noted New York Artist

Hazel Deane, the former Atlanta girl who attempted to end her life in New York recently because she found it too hard to be good in the big city, has, according to press advices, been taken into the family of Mr. and Mrs. Penryn Stanlaws, who say that for the present at least they will take care of the 16-year-old miss.

The girl was arraigned in Yorkville court several days ago, and told a story of privation and desperation to the magistrate which moved him to read a sermon to the unscrupulous men of New York, who force unwelcome attentions on working girls.

The magistrate remanded her to the custody of the well-known artist. When seen at the Stanlaws' home the girl said that she would not say who her parents were. She declared she came to New York and secured work as a model. She said that soon her life became unbearable.

"I decided to end it all," she said.

Stanlaws declared that he did not know anything of the girl other than she had told him.

"I shall keep her here until she recuperates. You can see she is far from strong," he added, "and will require nursing before she is a well girl."
